Heavy Bombing Attacks Blast Red Gun Positions

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers aimed tons of explosives today at North Vietnamese guns threatening the South, after fighter-bombers dodged heavy defenses and flew within 20 miles of Red China to blast a jammed rail yard.

Three waves of the eight-engine B52s struck artillery and rocket launchers in the demilitarized zone to prevent them from harassing U.S. Marines in northern South Vietnam, already busy chasing reinforced Red troops. The B52s also made one of their infrequent raids north of the zone Friday night to attack the Communist gun positions. The big planes generally stay away from North Vietnam to avoid Red surface-to-air missiles.

Marines Hit

Despite the B52 raids, Communist rockets hit the sandbagged Marine outposts at Con Thien just below the DMZ and wounded 40 Marines.

Some sharp ground fighting continued in northern South Vietnam, where allied forces are trying to keep the enemy off balance and foil whatever strategy the Reds have for their built-up forces in the area.

South Vietnamese troops sweeping in Quang Ngai Province, the southern boundary of the threatened five-province northern zone, reported five running fights with a fast-moving guerrilla force. They said the Communists left 40 dead. They also reported capturing 17 wounded guerrillas and 27 weapons.

In the air raids far above the DMZ, the U.S. Command said American pilots encountered Soviet-built missiles, heavy anti-aircraft fire and Communist MIG fighters. The MIGs fled when Air Force jets challenged them.

No Losses

Despite the heavy fire, no losses were reported. But in South Vietnam, Communist ground fire brought down a Marine F4 Phantom, the 204th announced combat plane loss over the South. The two fliers aboard parachuted and were picked up safe in the Tonkin Gulf.

The deepest air blow into North Vietnam hit the Lang Dang railway, 20 miles below the Chinese border and on the northeast rail line which is Hanoi's main artery to Red China. Pilots said at least 50 boxcars were in the yard and their bombs and rockets dotted the target zone with secondary explosions and fires.

Pilots flying cover for the bombers reported at least eight MIGs banking in wide arcs and looking for an opening to get at the U.S. raiders. The MIGs turned away when Air Force jets attempted to close in on them.

Three Raids

The Air Force reported three raids on the heavily guarded northeast rail line which is flanked with SAM missiles and radar-directed anti-aircraft guns. Altogether, Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots flew 146 missions over North Vietnam, a return to the recent average rate following three days when tropical storm Patsy blanketed most target areas.

Several strikes were against the Hanoi-Haiphong area, but most were as usual against supply targets along the road, rail and river routes from Hanoi south to the 17th parallel. Air Force and Navy pilots reported shooting up at least 32 North Vietnamese trucks.

Efforts for peace, meanwhile, were reported from Britain and Norway.

The Norwegian Foreign Ministry said a Nobel Prize delegation is going to Vietnam "to find out the parties' conditions for negotiations and a peace settlement in Vietnam."

It said the governments of North and South Vietnam, the Viet Cong and U.S. officials have expressed willingness to meet the delegation.

No date was set for departure, but a spokesman said it would be before the end of the year.

Official sources in London reported that South Vietnam has advised Britain it means to approach North Vietnam soon with an offer of direct peace talks that could include representation of the Viet Cong.

They said the British have been told the proposal will be linked with a move to suspend U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

A North Vietnamese broadcast after Sunday's election in South Vietnam was quoted by British officials as saying that Saigon must talk peace with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Savago Bars Supervisor Run

By CHARLES BERMPOLH

Peter J. Savago of New Paltz has decided not to seek the GOP renomination for the post of Town Supervisor. Savago instead will run for the new position of County Legislator in November.

The New Paltz Republican, currently chairman of the outgoing Board of Supervisors, is thus the second big-name party leader who has decided not to run under the controversial Local Law 1 formula, which has it that an official may hold both a county and a town position.

Douglas V. Dye of the Town of Kingston, majority leader of the Board of Supervisors, has also recently decided not to seek both posts.

Anthony J. Moriello, chairman of the New Paltz Planning Board, received the nod to run for supervisor.

Controversial

It was the Monroe County Legislature which, last year, brought a successful court action against Harold L. Knauf for holding elective positions in both the Town of Irondequoit and in the county.

Knauf, supervisor of the town, was also elected county legislator.

The Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court handed down the ruling, after reviewing the case, that a man cannot hold both a county and a town position simultaneously. The Irondequoit supervisorship was declared vacant, that being considered the lower elected position, and Knauf was forced to accept the legislator post only.

Migrant Critical After Lye Attack

A Highland migrant worker is in critical condition today after allegedly being attacked with lye or acid last night in a family dispute.

State Police from Highland told The Freeman this morning that Charles Brinkley, 31, of Sanford, Fla., was hit on the head with a ceramic bowl containing either acid or lye by his reportedly common-law wife, Naomi Barnett, 34, of DeBarry, Fla. He suffered third degree burns of entire head and face.

The incident occurred last night at 11:15 at the Palladino Farm on North Road, Highland. Brinkley was taken to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie where he is listed in critical condition.

The Barnett woman was charged with first degree assault and arraigned before Highland Justice Louis DeStasi. She was committed without bail to the Ulster County Jail last night. She faces a preliminary exam before Justice DeStasi at 2 p. m. today.

Investigating officers included Troopers Bebensee, Henne, Rebhan, Koenig and Long.

Why some Ulster officials question the now-famous Monroe County case is that Monroe was operating under a county charter, while Ulster is not, and some feel that the case will therefore not apply to Ulster.

Others believe that Monroe set the precedent, and when Local Law 1 is tested in Ulster's courts, the judiciary will go right back to Monroe.

County Attorney Abram F. Molyneux told The Freeman that there are many variables in the issue and that "it will have to go to the Court of Appeals," for a final ruling.

Both William R. West, Republican Supervisor of the Town of Woodstock, and Democrat George Majestic, Supervisor of the Town of Gardiner, will run under the duel post idea.

Informed sources believe that there is no doubt that their actions will be challenged and if Local Law 1 is found to be invalid then either new elections will have to be held or the Town Boards will appoint successors, and at this time, the latter possibility appears the most likely.

In Majestic's case, with the Gardiner Board having an overwhelming Republican majority, a GOPer will, quite probably, be appointed to succeed the Democrat.

No such issue is at stake in Woodstock.

Section 314 of the N.Y. State Election Law is what is commonly known as an escape clause, and it states that anyone nominated by a caucus for a town post has three days to decline the nomination.

After the three-day deadline, the candidates are locked in to position and their names will appear on the November ballot.

H. Clark Bell, of Woodstock, Kingston attorney and Constitutional Convention delegate, says he will offer an amendment to the upcoming new State Constitution which would allow county legislators, and other members of local legislative bodies, to be able to hold both posts. If passed, this would solve the dilemma.

Deemed Mr. Republican

Jesse McHugh Dies at 59

Jesse McHugh, 59, Wallkill, active in Ulster County politics for more than 30 years, died of an apparent heart attack Friday night while addressing a Town of Shawangunk Republican party caucus.

"It's just the way he would have wanted to go," an old friend observed remorsefully this morning, his voice choked with emotion. "He was seconding the nomination of Elizabeth Hammesfahr for the office of town clerk," the friend added.

Recently Re-elected

Just recently re-elected Ulster County Republican vice chairman, a post he held for 10 years, Mr. McHugh was first elected county coroner in 1939, filling the vacancy created by the death of Lester D. DuBois of New Paltz. Until the time of his death, Mr. McHugh operated the Jesse McHugh Wallkill Funeral Home.

A former chairman of the Board of Supervisors, he served the Town of Shawangunk as supervisor for 14 years, many years spent majority leader.

Later, he acted as secretary in Albany for State Sen. Ogden L. Bush.

Elected chairman of the Board of Supervisors in 1962, succeeding Robert F. Phinney of Kingston's 11th Ward, a colleague said, "In 12 years, never once have I seen him lose his temper. What better man could serve as chairman?"

His tenure as chairman lasted one year. Mr. McHugh retired from the board in 1965. With his retirement Republicans lost "... one of the greatest vote getters in Ulster County history."

'Shocked by Loss'

Present chairman of the Board of Supervisors, Peter Savago, R-New Paltz, said this morning, "I'm deeply saddened and shocked by the loss Mr. McHugh's death creates. He was a fine man."

Assemblyman Kenneth Wilson had this to say, "With the death of Jesse McHugh, I have lost not only a political associate but a dear, personal friend."

"For more than 25 years, Jesse and I worked together in the field of politics, a field many persons say does not produce true friendship, but this was certainly not our case. I considered Jess one of my closest friends."

"During the 10 years I

served as chairman of the Ulster County Republican party, Jess was my right hand, and as vice chairman, he demonstrated his value and loyalty to the party so much so I would never hesitate in saying he richly deserved the title, 'Mr. Republican.'"

Wilson added, "Jesse McHugh's passing however, transcends party lines and I know both Democrats and Republicans throughout Ulster County will join with me in mourning the loss of this man who has continuously contributed so much to the county he loved and labored so diligently."

Born Oct. 30, 1907, the son of the late Thomas and Kathryn Neff McHugh, he was a member of the Wallkill Rotary, Ivanhoe Lodge, Knights of Pythias; Wallkill Hook, Ladder and Hose Co.; and the Hudson River Lodge of Masons. In addition he was active in Boy Scout work, plus innumerable other organizations.

Wife Dead

His wife, the late Harriet Christman, died last May. Surviving are three sons, Thomas of New York City; Jesse of Allis, Wis.; and Chris of Wallkill. Also surviving are a sister, Miss Besie McHugh of Hudson and a brother, Herbert of Wallkill, and three grandchildren.

A graduate of Wallkill High School, Mr. McHugh attended Renouard Undertaking School in New York City. Prior to opening his own home, he was associated with Perrotti's Funeral Home in Newburgh and later with C. L. Ronk in Wallkill.

Several years ago Mr. McHugh is reported to have suffered a heart attack. In 1966 he was victim to several strokes.

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday, 2 p. m., from the Wallkill Reformed Church. The Rev. Walter Van Popering will officiate.

Burial will be in Bruynswick Rural Cemetery.

Friends may call at his late home Sunday evening, and Monday afternoon and night.

"The mission is in danger," said a spokesman at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where scientists delicately and desperately worked against the clock to close the helium valve.

"If the leak doesn't stop, the craft can't soft land on the moon," the spokesman explained. "If it can't soft land, its soil-testing equipment and camera will be destroyed."

That Dummy Off Bridge Put There by 2 Dummies

State Police take a dim view of false alarms that divert them from their assigned duties. Accordingly, Highland Troopers are "quite interested" to learn the identity of two men who allegedly threw a dummy off the Mid-Hudson Bridge yesterday afternoon.

Trooper Robert Whalen of the Highland Barracks told The Freeman this morning that a report was received yesterday afternoon at 3:35 that a man had either jumped or fallen from the Mid-Hudson Bridge.

Troopers responded to the call to find a dummy floating in the river. A witness said two young, white males driving a blue Chevy II threw the dummy off the bridge.

Trooper Whalen, commenting on the incident, said today, "This may seem funny to some people, but it's a very serious thing with us. Fortunately, the dummy hadn't sunk or else we'd still have scuba divers searching the river."

The dummy has been rescued from the murky waters of the Hudson but its two owners could be in hot water with the Troopers if they're apprehended.

The public's cooperation has been requested on the case. Anyone with information is asked to contact the State Police at the Highland Barracks.

Priest Eases Tensions In Watts With Alto Sax

LO SANGELES (AP)—Standing in the heat outside his church, the Rev. James Perrone calls to the children of Watts, and they come running, in droves.

The 39-year-old Roman Catholic priest, whom you might remember as Buddy James, gathers his flock in mellow tones emanating from an alto saxophone. He plays it with authority, and why not? For 10 years, he was a first rate sideman in some top bands.

"My whole approach with kids is using music as a kind of bridge," said Father Perrone. "It breaks down the initial tension of meeting with adults."

When he says music, he means jazz, which he plays with style and skill that remind the listener of Paul Desmond.

But for Father Perrone, jazz is merely the medium for his message: The Christian faith he toils to import to his audience, mostly Negro and Mexican-American children from this impoverished section of Los Angeles.

"God says we should use our talents and mine is this," But jazz from a priest? "Many people are surprised that a musician should be a priest," said Father Perrone. "They connect it (jazz) with dope, alcohol and a bad life."

What they forget is that there is good in everybody."

Besides, he added with a grin, "a lot of the older hymns don't seem to appeal to the youngsters."

Father Perrone came to St. Odilia's church in Watts only three months ago, but his church-step concerts already have made him known throughout the district. There also has been a noticeable increase in Sunday School attendance at St. Odilia's.

Father Perrone was only 13 when he got his first job as a musician. During the next 10 years, he played for such headliners as Louis Prima and Tony Pastor.

Pastor also featured Father Perrone, who used Buddy James as his professional name, as a vocalist. The band's other singer was a young girl named Rosemary Clooney, soon to soar to the very top in pop music and motion pictures.

Father Perrone had always been interested in the priesthood. In 1951, he abandoned his career and entered a seminary. Eight years later, he was ordained.

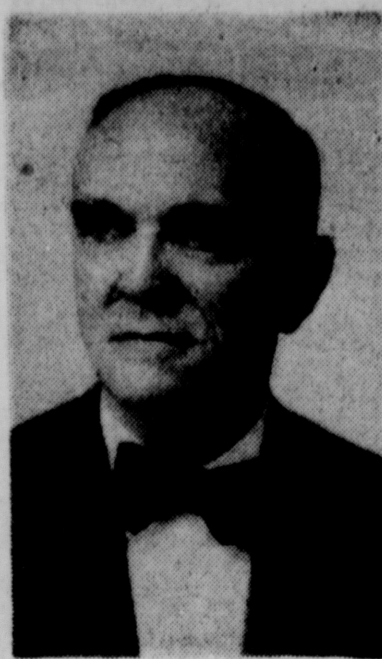

Immanuel Minister Announces Retirement

The Rev. Carl J. Goette, who has served Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church, Kingston, since Oct. 1, 1961, has announced to his congregation his intention of retirement from the parish Oct. 1, of this year.

The Rev. Mr. Goette came to Kingston in 1961. Prior to his present pastorate he served congregations in Alexandria, Va., Baltimore, Md., York, Pa., Pittston, Pa., and Pekin, N. Y.

The congregation is making efforts to secure a new pastor at the earliest opportunity. Assistance in this effort is assured by the president of the Atlantic District, Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, the Rev. Karl Graesser.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Goette have resided at the church parsonage, 22 Livingston Street during the past six years. Their future plans have not been announced.

Priest Eases Tensions In Watts With Alto Sax

LO SANGELES (AP)—Standing in the heat outside his church, the Rev. James Perrone calls to the children of Watts, and they come running, in droves.

The 39-year-old Roman Catholic priest, whom you might remember as Buddy James, gathers his flock in mellow tones emanating from an alto saxophone. He plays it with authority, and why not? For 10 years, he was a first rate sideman in some top bands.

"My whole approach with kids is using music as a kind of bridge," said Father Perrone. "It breaks down the initial tension of meeting with adults."

When he says music, he means jazz, which he plays with style and skill that remind the listener of Paul Desmond.

But for Father Perrone, jazz is merely the medium for his message: The Christian faith he wants to import to his audience, mostly Negro and Mexican-American children from this impoverished section of Los Angeles.

"God says we should use our talents and mine is this."

But jazz from a priest?

"Many people are surprised that a musician should be a priest," said Father Perrone.

"They connect it (jazz) with dope, alcohol and a bad life."

What they forget is that there is good in everybody."

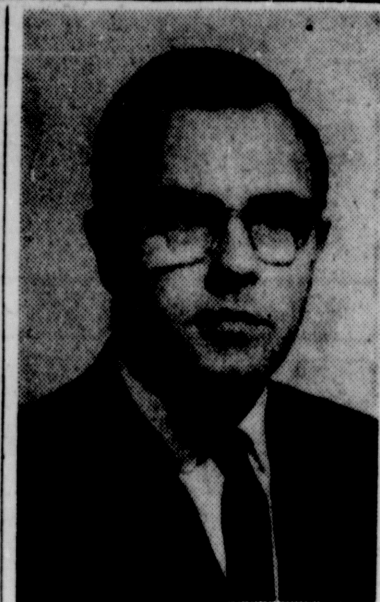

Besides, he added with a grin, "a lot of the older hymns don't seem to appeal to the youngsters."

Father Perrone came to St. Odilia's church in Watts only three months ago, but his church-step concerts already have made him known throughout the district. There also has been a noticeable increase in Sunday School attendance at St. Odilia's.

Father Perrone was only 13 when he got his first job as a musician. During the next 10 years, he played for such headliners as Louis Prima and Tony Pastor.

Pastor also featured Father Perrone, who used Buddy James as his professional name, as a vocalist. The band's other singer was a young girl named Rosemary Clooney, soon to soar to the very top in pop music and motion pictures.

Father Perrone had always been interested in the priesthood. In 1951, he abandoned his career and entered a seminary. Eight years later, he was ordained.

Lindsay Seeks Injunction To Stay Teacher Stoppage

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay says he will seek a court injunction to prevent a mass resignation threatened by the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers Monday, opening day of school.

Lindsay noted Friday that a new state law, which took effect a week ago, requires that the city go into court to head off a strike by 49,000 UFT teachers. A walkout would affect 1.1 million pupils.

Said Lindsay: "If the schools are open and the teachers don't report and throw picket lines around the schools, I think any reasonable person would call it a strike."

It was indicated that a court order would come late Sunday. Commenting on the mayor's statement, Albert Shanker, UFT president, replied: "The schools are going to close, and an injunction won't help. If there is no choice between a rotten settlement and going to jail, I'll go to jail."

If the union defies such an injunction, its officers could face up to 30 days in jail for contempt.

Shanker and the union's 2,500-member Delegate Assembly voted Thursday to reject the Board of Education's $125-million contract offer.

A mass meeting is scheduled for Sunday afternoon, when the teachers will vote by secret ballot on the board's proposals. The new state law also provides fines up to $10,000 a day for any strike by a union of public employees.

Shanker has said the teachers would not strike but would hand in mass resignations prior to picketing. He said he foresaw a strike "for a month or more."

Lindsay termed the money offer to the teachers generous and said the city was willing to sit down and iron out other issues, including a teacher demand for reduction in class sizes and more leeway for teachers in dealing with unruly students.

A mediation panel recommended that the new contract provide a pay range of $6,600 to $13,600 a year. The present wage scale is from $5,400 to $11,950. The UFT has demanded a range of $7,500 to $18,000.

In a statement Friday, Alfred A. Giardino, Board of Education president, said, "Our schools will be open Monday morning, hopefully manned by all of our regular teachers."

However, the Council of Supervisory Associations, which represents most supervisors in the city system, Friday night "urgently" recommended that all schools be closed if the teachers did not report.

The organization termed the move necessary to prevent possible injuries to pupils because of lack of adequate supervision.

Marine Creatures Hazard for Aquanauts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A potential danger for Sealab 3 aquanauts—poison-spined fish likely to flock to the underwater habitat like tourists to a new hotel—is under study by scientists at the University of Southern California.

Navy Cmdr. Scott Carpenter, the nation's only astronaut-aquanaut, was stung painfully two years ago in an excursion from Sealab 2 off La Jolla, Calif., by a variety of scorpion fish called a sculpin.

The sculpin and other venomous marine creatures may be a hazard also to inhabitants of Sealab 3, scheduled to be lowered 450 feet to the ocean floor near San Clemente Island off Southern California early next year.

Dr. Findlay Russell, USC professor of neurology, says "sculpins are generally found around reefs. An underwater vessel becomes another reef to them, and they tend to congregate around it as if it were a new 'hotel.' If they like the accommodations, they stay."

Findlay says Sealab 3 divers can avoid being stung when they leave the 2-by-20-foot tank-like vessel is a major part of a study under way by Russell and Dr. Paul Saunders, USC biologist, supported by the office of naval research.

Carpenter and others have described the pain caused by venom from spines along the sculpin's back as severe. Although seldom fatal, the sting can incapacitate a man for several hours or even days.

DA Association Differs on New State Penal Law

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Dist. Attorneys' Association says a policeman should be allowed to shoot at a person he "reasonably believes has attempted to commit or has committed a felony involving physical force."

A declaration to that effect was made at a convention of the association Thursday, three days after a Negro detective's fatal shooting of a Negro boy, 14, suspected of a mugging. The shooting led to three nights of disorder in a Brooklyn area.

The association also urged that the legislature enact laws that would protect further a household in the use of "deadly force" to repel a burglary attempt. The household, under this proposal, would be allowed to shoot whether or not the intruder used physical force.

The penal code, as recently amended, forbids the use of "deadly force" in either case unless the assailant or intruder does so first.

Romney Told to Bow Out By Home State Newspaper

By JACK BELL AP Political Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — A home state newspaper's suggestion that Michigan Gov. George Romney get out of the way appeared to project New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller into the middle of the contest for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination.

In an unprecedented home base blast at a presidential hopeful, The Detroit News said in an editorial to be published Sunday that Romney's "blurt and retreat habit" of dealing with Vietnam and other foreign problems disqualified him from seeking the presidency. The News said Rockefeller, who has disclaimed any further presidential ambitions, "knows what he believes and has the capacity to express his convictions" and should be brought into the picture.

Romney, who had no advance warning of this blast from a newspaper which has been one of his staunchest backers in three successful campaigns for governor, called the editorial "very amusing."

But his aides were not at all amused by this erosion of Michigan support for his as-yet unannounced bid for the 1968 GOP nomination.

They said privately, and some members of the Republican National Committee commented publicly, that this was a body blow that Romney's aspirations might not survive.

Rockefeller publicly discounted the impact of the editorial. He said in a statement: "I have supported Gov. Romney in the past and I will continue to support Gov. Romney in the future. I repeat, under no circumstances will I be a candidate."

Almost no member of the Republican National Committee, winding up a two-day campaign planning session here today, felt Rockefeller would not make himself available if circumstances seemed to dictate this would be the most available way to get a moderate Republican nominee.

Misuse of Bicycles

The increasing number of cyclists today makes it necessary to enforce local ordinances governing the use of bicycles. Cyclists must observe to the letter all traffic regulations. It is no more lawful for a bicyclist to jump a traffic light or operate on the wrong side of the street than to do so with an automobile. It also is no more lawful or considerate to park a bicycle in the middle of the sidewalk than to park an automobile there.

Cyclists violating traffic safety rules are a direct peril to operators of motor vehicles. To drop bicycles on sidewalks imperils pedestrians.

Parents should make sure their children understand the danger of cycling and follow every possible safety measure.

Polio Still Rampant

How quickly we forget.

Infantile paralysis, which as recently as 1955, was striking an average of 38,000 children and adults a year, now seems as ancient a scourge as smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever.

But polio is far from a vanquished and vanished disease in other parts of the world.

Nicaragua and Ecuador are experiencing epidemics "equaling or surpassing in intensity some of the worst outbreaks in the U.S.A. before the introduction of polio vaccine," reports the National Foundation-March of Dimes.

The foundation recently shipped three iron lungs to Ecuador from its Augusta, Ga., stockpile of anti-polio equipment, which has been maintained for just this sort of calamity. The lungs join six others sent to Latin America this summer, along with vaccines from the Red Cross and Pan American Health Organization.

"Through these lifesaving devices, the millions of Americans who have given to the March of Dimes will once again be aiding the helpless victims of infantile paralysis," says foundation president Basil O'Connor.

Remember iron lungs? Remember the long lines of people at schools all over the nation waiting for polio vaccine?

Perhaps people all over the world will be able to forget someday, too.

How to Head Off Riots

Stating that its program has helped to head off racial trouble in Pittsburgh, Omaha and Wilmington, the 3.3 million member United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. has mounted a year-round campaign to identify and deal with the root causes of racial crises, before, during and after riots in the ghettos.

There have been 23 racial riots since the first of June. The Rev. Dr. Gayraud S. Wilmore Jr., executive director of the denomination's Commission on Religion and Race, said that he and his staff worked on most of them, both before and during the strife, and to heal the wounds after.

Before a crisis, the emphasis is on preventive measures. During the crisis, it is on lessening the damage and the human harm. Afterward, it is on finding out why it happened and redressing the grievances. In each stage, teams of clergymen and church workers collaborate with civil rights people in the ghettos and establish liaison with the police and public officials.

The staff works in communities across the country, going from city to city as occasion demands, to put their program into effect. Their success has won the commendation of the 950,000 member Southern Presbyterians and the 10.8 million Southern Baptists, who have urged their pastors to put its practical suggestions into effect in their own communities.

The big thing about this whole approach is that 15 million church members are involving themselves in racial strife in an effort to prevent riots and, failing that, in ameliorating its effects and redressing its grievances. They are building bridges between the ghetto poor and the world around them.

A proposal to subsidize private industry which is hiring relief recipients to make up the difference in the productivity of the newcomer who is not ready to do the full job, is suggested by Social Services Commissioner Mitchell I. Ginsberg of New York. At the start, it would be cheaper than keeping them on relief, he argues, and in the long run it will take them off relief entirely. It is something to think about.

With toll road construction spreading at breathtaking speed, a special House subcommittee urged federal control over all toll roads, bridges and tunnels. The committee prefers nontoll roads as better serving the public interest. Unless such roads are also changed to limited access, they would not be as safe. All surveys show that limited access toll roads have the lowest accident rate per mile in the country.

Mad Dogs and Englishmen

Henry J. Taylor Says Education Today

Blessed are all parents now sending their young folks off to college. They'll have to be Croesus to afford it if they have a baby in the family instead.

The cost of living has hit another all-time high. But the cost of education is going up twice as fast as the cost of living — more than 50 per cent a year.

About 1.5 million high-school students are entering college this month. Ten years ago there were 2.7 million college-degree enrollees. Last September there were 5.8 million. College enrollment is forecast at 9.5 million by 1975. Over 50 per cent of all youth from 18 to 21 will be working for college degrees. The number of parents affected by the cost is immense, and growing.

Most parents must sacrifice a great deal to send a son or daughter through college. The cost today averages $1,900 a year. The future? If you have a baby in the family, the child will be ready to go in 1985. By then, at the rate the cost of education is increasing, it will cost an estimated $18,900 to send that child through a four-year college course.

The Great Society's inflation is sowing a whirlwind for all of us.

Before going to West Point, and while deferring his own education to provide money for his brother Edgar's education, Dwight D. Eisenhower worked in an Abilene, Kan., creamery eight hours at night, seven days a week. Where there was the will there was a way. Our youth are taught this now?

A recent Educational Testing survey shows that half the freshmen entering college are going for fun, football games and social life. Many soon will lose this image; others will just drop out. The national drop-out rate for college students now exceeds 50 per cent.

Among other grotesqueries, a recent Columbia University students' poll of desirable reading titles Shakespeare with F. Scott Fitzgerald — both in ninth place.

A nationwide Associated Press survey, in turn, covering college-educated men and women in the 21-to-30 age group, revealed that less than half the women, and only 61 per cent of the men, identified "Munich" as a symbol of appeasement (many thought it a brand of beer), or attributed any meaning whatever to "Dunkirk."

Less than 30 per cent correctly identified Woodrow Wilson as President during World War I. Only a few could define "deficit financing," a government spending beyond its income, or knew history's penalties against the people arising from this. Even the importance of patriotism was made debatable.

We have done an utterly unwholesome job in educating a frightening number of our educators.

The perpetual undergraduates, with their haystack heads and Desdemona hair styles who follow a lift of drift and words, remain merely a dramatized minority. But, by and large, today's students are hardly taught the tested values — individual and national alike.

They live in a business country. Yet a member firm of the American Association of Advertising Agencies has shown me a survey which indicates nearly nine out of 10 — 88 per cent — of today's college students say they'd prefer careers in government, in nearly any profession, or in academic life to business.

Along with a preference for security rather than to make the try, many call business "dull," "noncreative," etc., and see business as being remote and isolated from social welfare.

It does not seem to cross their minds that, over and beyond the taxes which exceed half of all business profits, the nation's businesses have donated about $2.5 billion to education alone in the past five years. The grants will exceed $700 million this year just to school and university scholarships, professors' salaries, buildings and books, and for educational institutions' operating expenses.

Meanwhile, the tragic tie between youth and crime grows and grows. Since 1958 the crime rate has increased five times as fast as our population. More than 2.5 million serious crimes were committed last year. And more than 40 per cent of all serious crimes now involve boys and girls under 18.

In both costs and results, our education today sometimes seems like a flywheel with the weight gone.

Signposts Point Two Ways

Democrats at Crossroads

BY BRUCE BISSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Even without the burden of the Vietnam war, the Democratic party would be at a critical turn in its life as the "party of the majority" in this country.

More than a few elements in the Democrats' standard constituency — union labor, the nationally minorities, the Negroes, the young — are becoming serious question marks for the future.

With the exception of the Negroes, large numbers among these groups today are part of affluent suburbia. Nearly half of all union members live there, according to a new poll. Roughly half of union families have incomes in the $7,500-$15,000 brackets.

For 34 years the Democratic party has been undergirding U. S. economic growth with social and other programs of major benefit to these groups and has, with the exception of the Eisenhower era, been rewarded with their votes.

The climax of this effort came in the summer of 1965 with the avalanche of Great Society programs. But even as this phase was ending with a flourish, the Democrats found themselves painfully beset by a whole new cluster of critical difficulties. Watts, an event of that very summer, was the symbol.

So, having labored 3½ decades to bolster sizable segments of American society, the Democrats hear no great choir of gratitude but, instead, an insistent clamor for huge new undertakings so revolutionary in their sweep as to make their typical social programs seem like warm-ups. The call is for the remaking of central city urban society.

Some nervous Democrats, looking toward their "old constituency" now residing in the suburbs, wonder whether these tested allies of the past may resent great spending endeavors in behalf of impoverished Negroes and other impatient underprivileged folk left behind in the rumbling urban cores — or flocking to them from the changing hinterland.

New Suburbanites
The new suburbanites may indeed be resentful on many counts. The substantial Republican election gains of 1966 were suggestive. Conceivably, 1968 could be worse for the Democrats. The John

Kraft poll of union members records them as exhibiting conventional suburban attitudes — intent on schools, public improvements and other local matters, angered over property tax increases. They do not seem eager to help remake that part of urban society they have left behind.

Their federal income taxes are already high and soon may go higher. The Democrats' old constituents now in the suburbs, and many of their younger counterparts there, have contributed heavily to an 87 per cent increase in school support from state and local tax sources just since 1960.

Yet certain key Democrats are privately telling some of their confederates that, at this moment of new domestic crisis in America, their party cannot find its future as the champion of suburban affluence but must plunge willingly to the aid of the struggling Negroes and other poverty-ridden Americans in the embattled cities.

These key men are demanding a heavy and unequivocal Democratic party commitment to this task, while still keeping a hopeful eye on their fabled allies and offering them more schooling money and such "way of life" programs as clean air and water, traffic relief, etc.

If the affluent suburbanites — who today make up perhaps the crucial one-third of the U. S. voting population — cannot be drawn into supporting the salvage of the central cities and their people, then at least one Democratic leader thinks his party's dominance may soon end and a new Republican era may be entered upon.

Drew Pearson Says Bunker Triumph

WASHINGTON — Ellisworth Bunker, a big businessman turned diplomat, has unraveled some tough diplomatic assignments — the Dominican Republic, India and Argentina in the days of Dictator Peron. But he's just put across one of his biggest — the Vietnamese elections. It was Bunker who got the military off its high horse and gave the civilian candidates a break. . . . Considering the fact that Vietnam had never in all history held elections, Bunker helped put across a political miracle. . . . It was Dean Acheson, when Undersecretary of State, who discovered Bunker, gave him his first assignment. . . . LBJ has picked one of the most experienced Negro executives, Walter Washington, for the tough job of being the first Mayor of Washington, D. C. Washington is an intimate friend of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., a Commissioner of D. C., who has wanted to retire after nearly eight years of tough, sometimes thankless service. . . . From Hawaii to California to Kansas, officials who want honest elections are considering various types of voting machines. One they should be aware of is a punch-board-type machine, made by an A-1 company, but with several traps which could lead to dishonest voting. Voters can punch the wrong holes, or if they touch the paper with sweaty hands they can throw the complicated machinery out of whack. Punch card results, when taken out of the machine at the end of the day's voting, could be gimmicked with additional punches.

Guns and Riots

The day after George Lincoln Rockwell, the Nazi Fuehrer, was gunned down by a sniper, his storm troopers distributed literature opposing gun control legislation. . . . The anti-gun control lobby claims that snipers during the Newark riots had no trouble getting guns despite New Jersey's stiff gun control laws. However, a secret treasury department spot check made after the Newark riots showed that 56 gun dealers in four states bordering or near New Jersey sold 690 firearms to New Jersey residents. Thus, lax laws in states around New Jersey contributed to the Newark riots.

The British, worried about race riots spreading to the United Kingdom, are considering paying the return fares of Negroes who want to go back to the West Indies. . . . Stokely Carmichael, born in the West Indies, is considered unlikely to risk a return to the USA. He's hopped from Cuba to North Vietnam, will probably remain an exile the rest of his life. . . . Book of the summer is Father James Cavanaugh's "A Modern Priest Looks at his Outdated Church." It's most reading. Grand Old Gal

The grand old gal of Democracy, Daisy Harriman, died at the age of 97 last week. In the dark days for Democrats, during the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover administrations, Daisy kept Democrats hopes going with her intimate political dinner. There, the late Charles M. Nelson of the New York World, along with Sen. Tom Walsh of Montana, hatched the Teapot Dome investigation. Sen. Walsh wanted to marry Mrs. Harriman. She said no, his moustache was too scraggly. . . . Later FDR picked Walsh to be his Attorney General, but the Senator died on his honeymoon, having married a vigorous Cuban lady. Men in Politics
Dick Nixon recently telephoned Jerry Ford, R-Mich., the House GOP Leader, to talk about political strategy. This column had no wiretap on their line, nevertheless can report they agreed it was good politics to demand that LBJ end the Vietnam War with a knockout blow. They figured this would be good politics if not good statesmanship. . . . What Nixon and Ford haven't bothered to explain is how we would score a quick victory without precipitating World War III. . . . GOP Wants Federal Aid To Go Directly to States

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans have blunted, if not reversed, the Johnson Administration trend toward granting federal aid directly to local communities.

By insisting that states be made the major channel for such aid, Republicans are giving impetus to a movement already under way that could revitalize state governments.

So far this session the House, with Republicans supplying the most votes, has overridden the administration and voted to put a new crime control program and an existing school aid program under state administration.

Although the Senate has not acted on the legislation, the House votes were so decisive it is unlikely they will be reversed.

Now Republicans are determined to enlarge the state's role in the anti-poverty program and it is hard to see how they can be defeated in the House.

Administration forces warn that states are without the people or experience to conduct such programs and that they are unresponsive to needs of cities.

But in fact, the traditional route of federal aid has been through the statehouse and most of it still goes that way. Last year, out of $14.6 billion in federal grants, only $3.8 billion went directly to local agencies.

The significant point for the administration, however, is that the $3.8 billion in direct aid is double the total of a year earlier. Although direct local grants for special purposes have existed since World War II, they have become a major artery of federal aid under Johnson.

The 86th Congress enacted 86 new programs providing direct local aid, more than were in existence before then.

The GOP drive against this approach has necessarily been piecemeal, since the Republicans are in the minority. Should they gain control of Congress they could be expected to move across the whole broad front of federal grants-in-aid.

Republican leaders have pledged solid support for a proposal to return to the states a share of federal income taxes for use as each state wants.

If they try to enact such a program in the immediate future, however, the major argument against it will be furnished by the states themselves. For even ardent states-rightsers agree there is much truth in the criticism that state governments have failed to keep up with the times.

Although court-ordered reapportionment is ending the long domination of rural interests in state legislatures, methods and procedures are still geared to slower times.

In only 13 states do the legislatures meet each year in general legislative sessions. In only 17 is there professional staffing for more than one committee in each house. Only 5 provide individual office space for members. Eight states fail to provide any secretarial help for legislators.

Such conditions cause concern among believers in a healthy federal-state relationship and efforts to correct them are being made on several levels. The prospect that Republicans will succeed in diverting new federal funds to the states is certain to spur those efforts.

Need Two Party System

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If South Vietnam had a two-party system, a civilian would now be president-elect.

In this election, the South Vietnamese military had a nationwide organization. None of the civilian candidates did. General Nguyen van Thieu and Nguyen Cao Ky were known through the country. No civilian was.

Thieu and Ky were the incumbents, with all the advantages of incumbents. Yet in this presidential election, the South Vietnamese people cast two-thirds of their votes for the 10 civilian candidates and a third for Thieu and Ky. The 10-way civilian split resulted in a Thieu-Ky victory.

A two-party system will be possible in Vietnam only with the creation of national political parties backed by precinct organization in the major provinces and thousands of volunteer workers who — as in the United States — canvass their neighbors on a wide scale.

Only such national political parties can match and outdo the nationwide organization of the Vietnamese army.

Only such grass roots organizations can whip temperamental candidates into line and prevent the division splinter groups cause. (Ten civilian candidates for the presidency was ridiculous. It made it impossible for any civilian to win.) A man in a major, nationwide political party knows he must cooperate with the door-to-door workers who get out the vote and stick with them. If he breaks off for himself, he won't have the power to win.

Strangely enough, the U. S. government has done little to aid the grass roots development of political parties in South Vietnam.

The feeling has been that technical advice and assistance in the developing of political parties would be interference in Vietnam's internal affairs.

This official U. S. attitude gives rise to the question: How can a country learn democracy except by receiving assistance in learning about democracy from countries which have tried it.

The advice and assistance need not all be from Americans. But the advice from Americans, in our political system, would, in any event, not be all along one line.

Think of what would happen in South Vietnam if dozens of rival Republican and Democratic party precinct organizers descended on the country, each man and woman assigned to helping legitimate Vietnamese groups organize from the top down.

Out of this competition, real parties would develop. Even more competition would be added by also bringing in precinct organizers from Britain, Japan, West Germany, Korea, Switzerland, the Scandinavian nations and from other countries with active democratic institutions.

The resulting rivalry would certainly prevent the South Vietnamese from meekly copying their mentors.

As this local political ferment grew, Viet Cong propaganda would lose much of its influence.

Misuse of Bicycles

The increasing number of cyclists today makes it necessary to enforce local ordinances governing the use of bicycles. Cyclists must observe to the letter all traffic regulations. It is no more lawful for a bicyclist to jump a traffic light or operate on the wrong side of the street than to do so with an automobile. It also is no more lawful or considerate to park a bicycle in the middle of the sidewalk than to park an automobile there.

Cyclists violating traffic safety rules are a direct peril to operators of motor vehicles. To drop bicycles on sidewalks imperils pedestrians.

Parents should make sure their children understand the danger of cycling and follow every possible safety measure.

Polio Still Rampant

How quickly we forget.

Infantile paralysis, which as recently as 1955, was striking an average of 38,000 children and adults a year, now seems as ancient a scourge as smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever.

But polio is far from a vanquished and vanished disease in other parts of the world.

Nicaragua and Ecuador are experiencing epidemics "equaling or surpassing in intensity some of the worst outbreaks in the U.S.A. before the introduction of polio vaccine," reports the National Foundation-March of Dimes.

The foundation recently shipped three iron lungs to Ecuador from its Augusta, Ga., stockpile of anti-polio equipment, which has been maintained for just this sort of calamity. The lungs join six others sent to Latin America this summer, along with vaccines from the Red Cross and Pan American Health Organization.

"Through these lifesaving devices, the millions of Americans who have given to the March of Dimes will once again be aiding the helpless victims of infantile paralysis," says foundation president Basil O'Connor.

Remember iron lungs? Remember the long lines of people at schools all over the nation waiting for polio vaccine?

Perhaps people all over the world will be able to forget someday, too.

How to Head Off Riots

Stating that its program has helped to head off racial trouble in Pittsburgh, Omaha and Wilmington, the 3.3 million member United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. has mounted a year-round campaign to identify and deal with the root causes of racial crises, before, during and after riots in the ghettos.

There have been 23 racial riots since the first of June. The Rev. Dr. Gayraud S. Wilmore Jr., executive director of the denomination's Commission on Religion and Race, said that he and his staff worked on most of them, both before and during the strife, and to heal the wounds after.

Before a crisis, the emphasis is on preventive measures. During the crisis, it is on lessening the damage and the human harm. Afterward, it is on finding out why it happened and redressing the grievances. In each stage, teams of clergymen and church workers collaborate with civil rights people in the ghettos and establish liaison with the police and public officials.

The staff works in communities across the country, going from city to city as occasion demands, to put their program into effect. Their success has won the commendation of the 950,000 member Southern Presbyterians and the 10.8 million Southern Baptists, who have urged their pastors to put its practical suggestions into effect in their own communities.

The big thing about this whole approach is that 15 million church members are involving themselves in racial strife in an effort to prevent riots and, failing that, in ameliorating its effects and redressing its grievances. They are building bridges between the ghetto poor and the world around them.

A proposal to subsidize private industry which is hiring relief recipients to make up the difference in the productivity of the newcomer who is not ready to do the full job, is suggested by Social Services Commissioner Mitchell I. Ginsberg of New York. At the start, it would be cheaper than keeping them on relief, he argues, and in the long run it will take them off relief entirely. It is something to think about.

With toll road construction spreading at breathtaking speed, a special House subcommittee urged federal control over all toll roads, bridges and tunnels. The committee prefers nontoll roads as better serving the public interest. Unless such roads are also changed to limited access, they would not be as safe. All surveys show that limited access toll roads have the lowest accident rate per mile in the country.

Mad Dogs and Englishmen

Henry J. Taylor Says Education Today

Blessed are all parents now sending their young folks off to college. They'll have to be Croesus to afford it if they have a baby in the family instead.

The cost of living has hit another all-time high. But the cost of education is going up twice as fast as the cost of living — more than 5 per cent a year.

About 1.5 million high-school students are entering college this month. Ten years ago there were 2.7 million college-degree enrollees. Last September there were 5.8 million. College enrollment is forecast at 9.5 million by 1975. Over 50 per cent of all youth from 18 to 21 will be working for college degrees. The number of parents affected by the cost is immense, and growing.

Most parents must sacrifice a great deal to send a son or daughter through college. The cost today averages $1,900 a year. The future? If you have a baby in the family, the child will be ready to go in 1985. By then, at the rate the cost of education is increasing, it will cost an estimated $18,900 to send that child through a four-year college course.

The Great Society's inflation is sowing a whirlwind for all of us.

Before going to West Point, and while deferring his own education to provide money for his brother Edgar's education, Dwight D. Eisenhower worked in an Abilene, Kan., creamery eight hours at night, seven days a week. Where there was the will there was a way. Our youth are taught this now?

A recent Educational Testing survey shows that half the freshmen entering college are going for fun, football games and social life. Many soon will lose this image; others will just drop out. The national drop-out rate for college students now exceeds 50 per cent.

Among other grotesqueries, a recent Columbia University students' poll of desirable reading listed Shakespeare with F. Scott Fitzgerald — both in ninth place.

A nationwide Associated Press survey, in turn, covering college-educated men and women in the 21-to-30 age group, revealed that less than half the women, and only 61 per cent of the men, identified "Munich" as a symbol of appeasement (many thought it a brand of beer), or attributed any meaning whatever to "Dunkirk."

Less than 30 per cent correctly identified Woodrow Wilson as President during World War I. Only a few could define "deficit financing," a government spending beyond its income, or knew history's penalties against the people arising from this. Even the importance of patriotism was made debatable.

We have done an utterly unwholesome job in educating a frightening number of our citizens.

The perpetual underclass, with their haystack heads and Desdemona hair styles and follow a lift of drift and words, remain merely a dramatized minority. But, by and large, today's students are hardly taught the tested values — individual and national alike.

They live in a business country. Yet a member firm of the American Association of Advertising Agencies has shown me a survey which indicates nearly nine out of 10 — 88 per cent — of today's college students say they'd prefer careers in government, in nearly any profession, or in academic life to business.

Along with a preference for security rather than to make the try, many call business "dull," "noncreative," etc., and see business as being remote and isolated from social welfare.

It does not seem to cross their minds that, over and beyond the taxes which exceed half of all business profits, the nation's businesses have donated about $2.5 billion to education alone in the past five years. The grants will exceed $700 million this year just to school and university scholarships, professors' salaries, buildings and books, and for educational institutions' operating expenses.

Meanwhile, the tragic tie between youth and crime grows and grows. Since 1958 the crime rate has increased five times as fast as our population. More than 2.5 million serious crimes were committed last year. And more than 40 per cent of all serious crimes now involve boys and girls under 18.

In both costs and results, our education today sometimes seems like a flywheel with the weight gone.

Signposts Point Two Ways

Democrats at Crossroads

BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Even without the burden of the Vietnam war, the Democratic party would be at a critical turn in its life as the "party of the majority" in this country.

More than a few elements in the Democrats' standard constituency — union labor, the nationally minorities, the Negroes, the young — are becoming serious question marks for the future.

With the exception of the Negroes, large numbers among these groups today are part of affluent suburbia. Nearly half of all union members live there, according to a new poll. Roughly half of union families have incomes in the $7,500-$15,000 brackets.

For 34 years the Democratic party has been undergirding U. S. economic growth with social and other programs of major benefit to these groups and has, with the exception of the Eisenhower era, been rewarded with their votes.

The climax of this effort came in the summer of 1965 with the avalanche of Great Society programs. But even as this phase was ending with a flourish, the Democrats found themselves painfully beset by a whole new cluster of critical difficulties. Watts, an event of that very summer, was the symbol.

So, having labored 3½ decades to bolster sizable segments of American society, the Democrats hear no great choir of gratitude but, instead, an insistent clamor for huge new undertakings so revolutionary in their sweep as to make their typical social programs seem like warm-ups. The call is for the remaking of central city urban society.

Some nervous Democrats, looking toward their "old constituency" now residing in the suburbs, wonder whether these tested allies of the past may resent great spending endeavors in behalf of impoverished Negroes and other privileged folk left behind in the rumbling urban cores — or flocking to them from the changing hinterland.

New Suburbanites

The new suburbanites may indeed be resentful on many counts. The substantial Republican election gains of 1966 were suggestive. Conceivably, 1968 could be worse for the Democrats. The John

Kraft poll of union members records them as exhibiting conventional suburban attitudes — intent on schools, public improvements and other local matters, angered over property tax increases. They do not seem eager to help remake that part of urban society they have left behind.

Their federal income taxes are already high and soon may go higher. The Democrats' old constituents now in the suburbs, and many of their younger counterparts there, have contributed heavily to an 87 per cent increase in school support from state and local tax sources just since 1960.

Yet certain key Democrats are privately telling some of their confederates that, at this moment of new domestic crisis in America, their party cannot find its future as the champion of suburban affluence but must plunge willingly to the aid of the struggling Negroes and other poverty-ridden Americans in the embattled cities.

These key men are demanding a heavy and unequivocal Democratic party commitment to this task, while still keeping a hopeful eye on their faded allies and offering them more schooling money and such "way of life" programs as clean air and water, traffic relief, etc.

If the affluent suburbanites — who today make up perhaps the crucial one-third of the U. S. voting population — cannot be drawn into supporting the salvage of the central cities and their people, then at least one Democratic leader thinks his party's dominance may soon end and a new Republican era may be entered upon.

Drew Pearson Says Bunker Triumph

WASHINGTON — Ellisworth Bunker, a big businessman turned diplomat, has unraveled some tough diplomatic assignments — the Dominican Republic, India and Argentina in the days of Dictator Peron. From Hawaii to California to Kansas, officials who want honest elections are considering various types of voting machines. One they should be aware of is a punch-board-type machine, made by an A-I company, but with several traps which could lead to dishonest voting. Voters can punch the wrong holes, or if they touch the paper with sweaty hands they can throw the complicated machinery out of whack. Punch card results, when taken out of the machine at the end of the day's voting, could be gimmicked with additional punches.

Guns and Riots

Thus, lax laws in states around New Jersey contributed to the Newark riots.

Tour Rigged: Farm Bureau

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — A hearing on migrant farm workers and tours of two of their camps brought cries of dismay from the state's two U.S. senators. A farm leader charged that the program was "rigged."

Democratic Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and his Republican colleague, Jacob K. Javits, conducted the one-day hearing Friday in Rochester, then drove to nearby Sodus to inspect the living conditions of migrants camped at two farms.

At one farm, the legislators walked past a sign warning that trespassers would be shot and were confronted by fruit grower Jay DeBattis, who first refused them admittance, then relented. Kennedy said he found conditions "deplorable" and "as bad as any I've seen anywhere in the U.S." After inspecting the old, battered buses that serve as the migrants' living quarters, Javits called the housing, sanitation and health conditions "abominable."

DeBattis commented that he was "fed up with so-called gooders."

Criticism of a different sort came from William E. Bensley, president of the New York Farm Bureau, who called the hearing session "rigged."

"It was an invitation-only affair," Bensley said from his Albany office. There were representatives from organized labor, civil rights groups, migrant workers and only one farmer.

"Agricultural organizations should have been given the opportunity to present their side of the issue," he asserted. "If not, then certainly more than one farmer should have been invited to represent the 44,000 farm-operators in New York State."

Bensley said he planned to "make an official protest to Sens. Javits and Kennedy."

Javits flew to Chicago after the hearing and tour. Kennedy scheduled visits today to Buffalo, Syracuse, Ithaca, Binghamton and Johnson City.

Police Chief Killed in Plane Crash

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Binghamton Police Chief John V. Gillen, 53, and George Gardner, 70, an automobile dealer, were killed Friday night when their airplane crashed into a field about a half-mile northwest of Broome County Airport.

Airport officials said the twin-engine plane, owned and piloted by Gardner, was in sight and radio contact with the airport before it crashed.

The Beechcraft Baron crashed head first into the field, plowing a crater several feet deep. Observers at the scene said the only recognizable section was the tail of the red, white and black airplane. Wreckage was strewn over the small field.

Gillen and Gardner were found in the cockpit, police said. The cause of the crash was not determined immediately.

Authorities said the plane was on a return flight from Albany. Gillen had been chief of the Binghamton Police Department since last January after serving as acting chief for a year. He had been a member of the department since July 1942, with time out for service in World War II.

Gardner operated an automobile dealership in Binghamton for many years.

Gillen lived at 43 Kneeland Ave. Gardner's address was 14 Cornell Ave.

Prisoner Transfers Scored by Attorneys

Since a number of prisoners were transferred to the Orange County jail, Goshen, on July 29 under a contract entered into between the Ulster County Board of Supervisors and Orange County, crowded conditions at the Ulster County jail have been relieved.

While the population varies from day to day, and at times the population in the men's jail has exceeded capacity, Sheriff William B. Martin said this week that the new arrangement is working out very well.

However, counsel for inmates awaiting trial have found the new arraignment "inconvenient."

Before County Judge Raymond J. Mino several attorneys have registered protest that the arrangement prevents them from consulting with their clients for preparation for trial.

It has been suggested by some attorneys that only prisoners who have been sentenced be housed in the Orange County jail at Goshen and that defendants awaiting trial be retained in the local jail where they would be available for discussion of their trial with local counsel.

The first prisoners under the contract between Ulster and Orange Counties were taken to Goshen jail on July 29, when 20 prisoners were transferred. Since then the number has been increased as the population in the local jail increased beyond capacity.

The only prisoners transferred to Orange County jail have been males. There is ample room in the women's quarters of the Ulster County jail to house all females committed.

Prisoners housed in Orange County jail are taken to and from that institution by Sheriff Martin.

Albany Boy Dies After Stab Incident

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A 13-year-old boy was stabbed fatally today in what police described as a demonstration of the use of a commando knife.

A 16-year-old boy was charged with manslaughter.

Donald Gilmore of Albany suffered a stab wound in the chest and died at Albany Medical Center Hospital.

Herman Toliver, also of Albany, was held for arraignment on a charge of first-degree manslaughter and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Police said Toliver made a "sweeping motion" with a knife used by commandos and plunged the blade into Gilmore's chest as they stood with other youths in a downtown street.

Gilmore pulled the knife out, ran a short distance and collapsed, they said.

Gilmore lived at 84 Philip St. Toliver's address is 79 South Ferry St.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Sept. 9, the 252nd day of 1967. There are 113 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1850, California was admitted to the union as the 31st state.

On this date: In 1776, the second Continental Congress made the term "United States" official.

In 1836, Abraham Lincoln was licensed to practice law.

In 1893, President Grover Cleveland's wife gave birth to a daughter. It was the first time a child had been born to a First Lady in the White House.

In 1894, Sun Yat-sen led his first attempt at revolution in China.

In 1945, at the end of the Pacific war, the formal surrender of some one million Japanese in China took place in Nanking.

Ten years ago—Nashville, Tenn., began school integration with the admission of 13 Negro first-graders who passed hostile crowds to enter all-white schools.

Five years ago—Communist China claimed to have shot down an American-built U2 reconnaissance plane flown by a Nationalist Chinese pilot.

One year ago—President Lyndon B. Johnson signed a bill setting safety standards for 1968 model cars.

Prisoner Transfers Scored by Attorneys

Since a number of prisoners were transferred to the Orange County Jail, Goshen, on July 29 under a contract entered into between the Ulster County Board of Supervisors and Orange County, crowded conditions at the Ulster County jail have been relieved.

While the population varies from day to day, and at times the population in the men's jail has exceeded capacity, Sheriff William B. Martin said this week that the new arrangement is working out very well.

However, counsel for inmates awaiting trial have found the new arraignment "inconvenient."

Before County Judge Raymond J. Mino several attorneys have registered protest that the arrangement prevents them from consulting with their clients for preparation for trial.

It has been suggested by some attorneys that only prisoners who have been sentenced be housed in the Orange County jail at Goshen and that defendants awaiting trial be retained in the local jail where they would be available for discussion of their trial with local counsel.

The first prisoners under the contract between Ulster and Orange Counties were taken to Goshen jail on July 29, when 20 prisoners were transferred. Since then the number has been increased as the population in the local jail increased beyond capacity.

The only prisoners transferred to Orange County jail have been males. There is ample room in the women's quarters of the Ulster County jail to house all females committed.

Prisoners housed in Orange County jail are taken to and from that institution by Sheriff Martin.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST of the Emily Post Institute
A PAINLESS WAY TO PRESENT POOL RULES

The following letter has been chosen as the prize winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette has been sent to Mrs. Jerome Zobel of Palo Alto, California.

Dear Mrs. Post: I always enjoy your column so much. You asked for ideas for adding safety and pleasure to one's pool life, so —

Ten years ago, when we first built our swimming pool and had many young guests invited by our four children, we placed a plastic bowl (for bobby pins) on the table where guests put their eyeglasses and wrist watches. Beside it we displayed the following sign:

PLEASE

We hope you won't be angry if we make this small request —

But cleaning out the swimming pool has greatly dimmed our zest.

Please park your bobby pins right here — they rust both deck and pool.

They slip beneath the tightest cap. (Yes, swim caps are the rule!)

And if your cap or flippers close with metal clips, as well.

Please check to see you have them still before you say "farewell."

This box is where all chewing gum and band-aids do belong: Removing them from nine feet deep's a task both hard and long.

And if you must use suntan oil and coat yourself with cream.

Please drip a drop and rub in well — it clogs the filter stream.

We love to have you visit — and hope that you have fun. Let's splash a bit, then spend some time relaxing in the sun.

Needless to say, the "box" referred to is the trash box, and of course, we have never permitted any breakable objects where swimmers walk barefoot, any running on the slippery deck, or any diving in shallow water.

The sign, (yes, it's original) has proved very satisfactory during these last 10 years — Louise Zobel.

Dear Mrs. Zobel: Thank you so much for your poem, and I'm sure our readers will enjoy it as much as I did.

"Mr. and Mrs." Does Not Mean "And Family"

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently I received a wedding invitation in which the R.s.v.p. cards were pre-marked (2) for the number of persons attending. In the past these cards were left blank and we filled in the number of persons. There are five in the family, and they marked in 2. My three are not "tots" — 14, 16, and 18. My feelings are hurt. Was this the right thing to do?

—Marge Prince.

Dear Mrs. Prince: Wedding invitations addressed to Mr. and Mrs. are not intended for the whole family. The fact that the "two" was printed on the R.s.v.p. card clearly indicates that the bride's family cannot include children, and this seems to be a rather practical way to inform the guests of this without the necessity of writing "no children."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My young children have had literally hours of fun playing doctor with their dolls and a little Doctor's Kit which I made for them.

I save empty medicine bottles, plastic containers, and a bandage tin. In the bottles I put a bit of talcum powder, small cake-decorator candles (for pills), water for antiseptic, etc. I put some petroleum jelly (to be used as salve) in a plastic container and gave them a fingernail brush for the "doctor" to scrub his hands.

Into the bandage tin, I put clean strips of white rags. I put small pieces of cotton into an empty box which had contained cotton-tipped swabs.

I also save popsicle sticks to be used as splints and gave them a pair of glasses (with the lenses removed) so the doctor would look more important.

My only purchases were a small roll of inexpensive adhesive tape and a pair of blunt-edge scissors. The total cost was only about 40 cents and the children have had hours of fun with the kit.

Maybe other mothers would like this suggestion for their children.

These "Doctor's" and "Nurse's" supplies may be kept in an unused lunch box or mother's discarded purse. Both make fine kits.

Marjorie Pennell

Dear Heloise:

Yesterday I made up my mind to change the furniture in my bedroom but didn't want to mar the pretty wooden floors in my new home.

This is what I did to prevent it.

I folded an old nylon stocking several times and placed one under each post of the bed. I also put one under every leg of the furniture.

Then the heavy pieces moved easily without a trace of a scar on my beautiful polished floor.

I was so elated over my conquest I wanted to tell you to pass it on to others.

Mrs. Wallace Green

You just did, Honey Bee, and I think your idea was great.

The drawers may be removed from any chest for scooting, and replaced after the furniture is in place. Sure saves lots of back strains!

A Reader

But she didn't tell me what it was!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Those little beads that you see in some ice cubes are air, or carbon dioxide bubbles.

Those cloudy ice cubes that plague many housewives are due to impurities in the water such as fluoride, chlorine, mud or what have you.

Such waters should be allowed to settle in a pitcher or bottle for a while before pouring in the ice cube tray. If this does not take it out, then you should get some soft water supply.

In the past these cards were left blank and we filled in the number of persons. There are five in the family, and they marked in 2. My three are not "lots" — 14, 16, and 18. My feelings are hurt. Was this the right thing to do? —Marge Prince.

Dear Mrs. Prince: Wedding invitations addressed to Mr. and Mrs. are not intended for the whole family. The fact that the "two" was printed on the R.s.v.p. card clearly indicates that the bride's family cannot include children, and this seems to be a rather practical way to inform the guests of this without the necessity of writing "no children."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My young children have had literally hours of fun playing doctor with their dolls and a little Doctor's Kit which I made for them.

I save empty medicine bottles, plastic containers, and a bandage tin. In the bottles I put a bit of talcum powder, small cake-decorator candies (for pills), water for antiseptic, etc. I put some petroleum jelly (to be used as salve) in a plastic container and gave them a fingernail brush for the "doctor" to scrub his hands.

Into the bandage tin, I put clean strips of white rags. I put small pieces of cotton into an empty box which had contained cotton-tipped swabs.

I also save popsicle sticks to be used as splints and gave them a pair of glasses (with the lenses removed) so the doctor would look more important.

My only purchases were a small roll of inexpensive adhesive tape and a pair of blunt-edge scissors. The total cost was only about 40 cents and the children have had hours of fun with the kit.

Maybe other mothers would like this suggestion for their children.

These "Doctor's" and "Nurse's" supplies may be kept in an unused lunch box or mother's discarded purse. Both make fine kits.

Marjorie Pennell

Dear Heloise:

Yesterday I made up my mind to change the furniture in my bedroom but didn't want to mar the pretty wooden floors in my new home.

This is what I did to prevent it:

I folded an old nylon stocking several times and placed one under each post of the bed. I also put one under every leg of the furniture.

Then the heavy pieces moved easily without a trace of a scar on my beautiful polished floor.

I was so elated over my conquest I wanted to tell you to pass it on to others.

Mrs. Wallace Green

You just did, Honey Bee, and I think your idea was great.

The drawers may be removed from any chest for scooting, and replaced after the furniture is in place. Sure saves lots of back strains!

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise: I have a problem that nylon net and vinegar won't solve...

A Reader

But she didn't tell me what it was!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Those little beads that you see in some ice cubes are air, or carbon dioxide bubbles. Those cloudy ice cubes that plague many housewives are due to impurities in the water such as fluoride, chlorine, mud or what have you.

Such waters should be allowed to settle in a pitcher or bottle for a while before pouring in the ice cube tray. If this does not take it out, then you should get some soft water equipment to clear your water supply.

Jedd S. Reiser, the architect who is the New Paltz Democratic Party candidate for county legislator, believes that "legislators should set up a board of trustees to initiate and be responsible for the construction of any county building and for its operation when in use."

"The board should have the authority to evolve the program, do the research study necessary to write a building program, interview and select the architects, and report the progress and requests for finances to the legislators," Reiser added.

Area Farmers To Vote for ASC Officers

Farmers today got a last-minute reminder about important upcoming elections of ASC farmer-committeemen who will serve for the next year as local administrators of national farm-action programs.

According to Joseph Sauer, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Upland County Committee, eligible voters of Ulster County will cast ballots for community committeemen by mail. Ballots are to be returned by Sept. 15 to the ASCS Office, 54 John Street, Kingston.

Qualified voters in the election are all farmers who are eligible to take part in one or more of the farm programs which the committees administer. Lists of eligible voters in each community are available for public inspection in the ASCS county office.

The community committee the farmers elect from among their own number consists of a chairman, vice chairman and a third regular member, as well as two alternates. The regular members of the committee also serve as delegates and the alternates as alternate delegates — to the county convention, where farmers will be elected to fill vacancies on the ASC county committee.

The chairman stressed the importance of electing representative farmers as committeemen in view of their broad program responsibilities. Programs administered by the committeemen include the Agricultural Conservation Program, Cropland Adjustment Program, acreage allotments, marketing quotas, commodity loans, feed grain program, voluntary wheat program and the National Wool program.

Chairman Sauer urged all qualified voters to be sure to cast their ballots. Eligibility to vote or hold office as a committeeman is not restricted by reason of race, color, creed, or national origin.

Train-Cab Crash Basis Of 2 Actions

Collision between a north-bound New York Central Railroad train and a taxicab operated by Economy Cab Corporation of Kingston on the afternoon of Aug. 19, 1964, is the basis for two negligence actions on trial in Supreme Court before Justice R. Waldron Herzberg and a jury.

Clifford C. Craig, driver of the cab, and Economy Cab Corporation bring an action, Craig for injuries and the cab company for damage to the cab. That action is brought against Edward Hackett of Glenelg, Lake Park, a passenger in the cab, bringing an action against both the Economy Cab Corporation and the cab driver and the railroad, alleging negligence on the part of both the railroad and the driver of the cab.

Michael Nardone is attorney of record for Clifford C. Craig and Economy Cab Corporation. Joachim and Flanzig of Bronx appear for Hackett. Defendant Economy Cab Corporation appears by Ray McDonald. Appearing for the New York Central Railroad is Charles Gaffney of the firm of Gaffney and Hill.

Edward Hackett, brings his action by guardian. Hackett had summoned a taxi to convey himself to the Trailways bus terminal. Proceeding south over Glenelg Boulevard parallel to the railroad, the cab driver turned left to cross the tracks and continue over Eastern Parkway to the terminal.

when his cab was struck by the north bound train. Clifford C. Craig, driver, and Economy Cab contend the railroad was negligent. The railroad claims Craig was negligent. Both Craig and Hackett received very severe injuries when the cab was struck and shoved some 598 feet along the tracks before the train was halted. The train was being operated by Engineer Claude Christiana. Christiana alleged the train was being operated at a speed of about 35 miles an hour, having stopped at the Lake Katrine station just south. He also alleged the engine bell was ringing and the engine lights were on. When about 90 feet from the crossing, Christiana alleges he saw the cab some 30 to 40 feet away coming parallel to the tracks. He assumed it would stop. When it did not he applied "emergency" brakes to bring his train to a stop.

Texas Teens Protest

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — An estimated 75 to 100 students staged an hour-long sit-out in the Irvin High School parking lot Friday to protest school regulations banning long hair and short skirts.

Three persons were arrested but were later found innocent of violating charges by Justice of the Peace Brunson Moore. They received a stiff warning.

At the sit-out, the youngsters protested that boys were being sent home from school to get unreasonably short haircuts while girls were being sent away "by the dozens" to lengthen their skirts.

Principal Cecil Bean said that by long hair, the school meant haircuts that extended over eyes, ears and collars. With regard to skirt length, he said there was no arbitrary length, "only that decency be maintained, like when a girl sits down she doesn't show everything but what she is sitting on."

Physical Fitness Aids Men in Space Flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., at 44 the dean of America's astronauts puffed on a cigarette and confidently declared: "We don't need supermen or athletes to fly these things."

"You've got to be in high tune, sure," he added, "but, you're not going into a boxing ring or into the Olympics."

Flown Two Craft

He should know. The wavy-haired "textbook" pilot has flown two spaceships and is training for a third mission which would make him the first man to fly all three generations of U.S. spacecraft—Mercury, Gemini and, now, Apollo, early next year.

Schirra's statement reflected somewhat the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's feeling toward the physical fitness of its spacemen. It's simple.

"The gym is free for them to use as they see fit," said civilian Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, the chief astronaut. "They're big boys and voluntarily stay in shape. They know the consequences of not doing that. You see, we've got a good incentive program."

That, they have. The payoff in NASA's "incentive program" for the pilots could be a trip to the moon.

The pilots average 5 feet 10 inches in height, ranging from seven six-footers, the limit, to Navy Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr.'s 5-foot-6½ inches. They average 159 pounds, from civilian John L. Swigert Jr.'s 186 to Conrad's 138.

No Orders

"We have not said, 'You're going to run so many miles a day, you're going to do so many setups a day,'" explained Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' physician. "We have said only it's a responsibility of every astronaut to keep himself in good, sound physical fitness."

In general, Berry noted, "They are constantly made aware of the problems with smoking. What we'd like to do is see them all stop anyway because of the health hazard."

"But, if they do smoke, and some do, we have had them stop smoking about a month before a mission because people can't smoke in the spacecraft atmosphere we have (100 per cent oxygen)."

NASA keeps close tabs on the health of its pilots, continually checking them during the year. And, each undergoes a rigid annual hospital physical examination.

Doctors in the program are particular. The astronauts know it. They realize that problems considered ever so slight to the average earthling could mean the difference in going into space or being grounded.

"The board should have the authority to evolve the program, do the research study necessary to write a building program, interview and select the architects, and report the progress and requests for finances to the legislators," Reiser added.

Reiser feels that this plan would take "the work on such projects out of politics" and put it "into the field of public service where it belongs."

The Democratic candidate said that the county legislators

"that raise the money would not be the group that spends it. This means the legislators would be assuming the traditional role of watch dog and would not have to dilute their time, energies, and efforts in performing the function of trustees."

"One example of the shortcomings of the present method of dealing with the problems of building progress," Reiser went on, "is the architectural study of the County Infirmary. The $1,000 allotted for the purpose of making the study of the building and an estimated cost for building is completely inadequate. To make a serious complete study of the needs of such an infirmary will cost considerably more than $1,000," and he estimated that a more reasonable fee "would be nearer $12,000."

Economy Cab Corporation and Craig contend there was a growth of brush and trees which obstructed vision as the cab approached the crossing and that although Craig stopped at the crossing and then proceeded to cross the track, he was unable to see the train which it is alleged was being operated in a negligent manner.

After opening by counsel, the case was adjourned until 10 a. m. Monday.

Principal Cecil Bean said that by long hair, the school meant haircuts that extended over eyes, ears and collars. With regard to skirt length, he said there was no arbitrary length, only that decency be maintained. Like when a girl sits down she doesn't show everything but what she is sitting on.

Hackett had summoned a taxi to convey himself to the Trailways bus terminal. Proceeding south over Glenrie Boulevard parallel to the railroad, the cab driver turned left to cross the tracks and continue over Eastern Parkway to the terminal.

When his cab was struck by the north bound train.

Clifford C. Craig, driver, and Economy Cab contend the railroad was negligent. The railroad claims Craig was negligent.

Both Craig and Hackett received very severe injuries when the cab was struck and shoved some 598 feet along the tracks before the train was halted. The train was being operated by Engineer Claude Christiansa. Christiansa alleged the train was being operated at a speed of about 35 miles an hour, having stopped at the Lake Katrine station just south. He also alleges the engine bell was ringing and the engine lights were on. When about 90 feet from the crossing, Christiansa alleges he saw the cab some 30 to 40 feet away coming parallel to the tracks. He assumed it would stop. When it did not he applied "emergency" brakes to bring his train to a stop.

Physical Fitness Aids Men in Space Flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., at 44 the dean of America's astronauts, puffed on a cigarette and confidently declared: "We don't need supermen or athletes to fly these things."

"You've got to be in high tune, sure," he added, "but you're not going into a boxing ring or into the Olympics."

Flown Two Craft
He should know. The way-haired "textbook" pilot has flown two spaceships and is training for a third mission which would make him the first man to fly all three generations of U.S. spacecraft—Mercury, Gemini and, now, Apollo, early next year.

Schirra's statement reflected somewhat the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's feeling toward the physical fitness of its spacemen. It's simple.

"The gym is free for them to use as they see fit," said civilian Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, the chief astronaut. "They're big boys and voluntarily stay in shape. They know the consequences of not doing that. You see, we've got a good incentive program."

That, they have. The payoff in NASA's "incentive program" for the pilots could be a trip to the moon.

The pilots average 5 feet 10 inches in height, ranging from seven six-footers, the limit, to Navy Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr.'s 5-foot-6½ inches. They average 159 pounds, from civilian John L. Swigert Jr.'s 186 to Conrad's 138.

No Orders
"We have not said, 'You're going to run so many miles a day, you're going to do so many setups a day,'" explained Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' physician. "We have said only it's a responsibility of every astronaut to keep himself in good, sound physical fitness."

In general, Berry noted, "they are constantly made aware of the problems with smoking. What we'd like to do is see them all stop anyway because of the health hazard."

"But, if they do smoke, and some do, we have had them stop smoking about a month before a mission because people can't smoke in the spacecraft atmosphere we have (100 per cent oxygen)."

NASA keeps close tabs on the health of its pilots, continually checking them during the year. And, each undergoes a rigid annual hospital physical examination.

Doctors in the program are particular. The astronauts know it. They realize that problems considered ever so slight to the average earthling could mean the difference in going into space or being grounded.

That, they have. The payoff in NASA's "incentive program" for the pilots could be a trip to the moon.

Football Crusaders Play Long Island Jets Sunday

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

If you weren't at Dietz Stadium last Sunday night, you missed a lot of fun.

The Hudson Valley Crusaders returned semi-pro football to Kingston with a 17-6 victory over the Golden Bears of Stamford, Conn.

Tomorrow night (Sunday) at 6:30 the Crusaders will be back to take on the highly touted Long Island Jets in what promises to be another night of tumultuous grass roots football.

The word has gotten around since last week and it wouldn't be surprising if the smartly dressed Crusaders attracted more fans than the surprise total of 800 for the opener.

With only limited advance buildup, the Crusaders drew the largest sports crowd seen at Dietz Stadium in a decade. The turnout was a tribute to the fascinating grip pro football has on the American sports public. It is doubtful if Mickey Mantle could draw 800 to a baseball game at Dietz these days.

Roger Myrick, Impresses
Manuel Rodriguez and Gar Withers received the advance billing in the quarterback speculation, but the Crusaders may have come up with their own version of Johnny Unitas

in Roger Myrick, former Beacon High star.

Myrick bulled his way 5 yards up the middle for one of the Kingston TD's to climax a 43-yard advance in which he gained 36 yards in five carries. He picked the team up after Rodriguez started and had them rolling smoothly at the finish.

The offensive backfield of Myrick, Murray Mulligan, Dave Mallory and Clarence Wright showed flashes of power after a faltering start. With the invaluable first game experience behind them, the Crusaders figure to be a smoother working outfit against the Jets.

Melvin Bennett, a 6 foot, 220 pounder was outstanding on defense. So were Chip MacDowell, Jim Gordon and Fred Bragg. Don Roman, the defensive right end, blocked the Stamford try for extra point.

Kicker Tracey Clicked
Then there is always Bob Tracey, the Scottish born former rugby star, who kicked two extra points and a 20-yard field goal in his Kingston debut. He looks like a handy guy to have around for the close ones.

The football at Dietz Stadium this Sunday should be higher grade than last week. Don't forget the Crusaders are not in the habit of losing. Last year at Poughkeepsie they compiled a 9-1 record. They aim to do as well this year.

Lasher Aids Tigers

BY ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

When the Detroit Tigers moved into a first place tie in the scrambled American League pennant race with a 4-1 win Friday night over Eddie Stanky's Chicago White Sox, rookie Fred Lasher picked up his sixth save of the season.

If the Tigers go on to win the pennant in the junior circuit, Lasher will be on cloud nine and the Minnesota Twins will be kicking themselves on the backside. Just a year ago, they had the relief chucker in their farm system and gave him a release.

Lasher is a 26-year-old graduate of Poughkeepsie High School. He was an All-DUSO selection in 1959 and has spent eight years in professional baseball. Except for a brief fling at the beginning and during the last month of the '63 season with the Twins, he has been pitching in the minors.

After his release by the Twins, the hard throwing righty was drafted by the Tigers and sent to their Montgomery (Class AA) club of the Southern League. He compiled a nifty 8-1 record with an earned run average of .668 before being promoted to Toledo (Class AAA) of the International League. This event took place on July 24. Just 16 days later he was brought up by the Tigers.

Lasher, a quiet spoken and modest young man was pleasantly surprised by the Detroit move. John Podres, the veteran lefty, was placed on the disabled list and Fred Gladding, the early season bullpen wonder, had trouble retiring any body.

Win Over Twins
Since his recall a month ago today, Lasher has saved those six big games and has picked up a victory in relief. Over who? You guessed it—the Minnesota Twins.

FRED LASHER

We talked to Lasher at the Sheraton Hotel in Chicago and he just couldn't get over the close race in the American League.

"Naturally, we in Detroit feel we are going to win the flag. Our hitting compares favorably with the other contenders and in Al Kaline, we have the best player in the league. If we survive this four game series in Chicago, we will be home for games with Baltimore, Boston, Washington and the Yankees and will be in a good position to make a drive," Lasher said.

When questioned about his sudden success, the Poughkeepsie native said his fast ball, which both rises and sinks, has been his best pitch. "When you pitch in relief, you're told to go with your best pitch. Mine is the fast ball."

Took a Chance
He denied having had arm trouble but said the Twins never had confidence in him. When it appeared as if we were never going to get another chance with Minnesota, Lasher asked for a release. The Twins obliged, Detroit took a chance and Lasher has repaid the club with his superlative relief work.

Fred confines his pitching talents exclusively to the bullpen. Even in the minors he has been a relief pitcher and it's been in this role that he is keeping the Tigers in the thick of the race.

"You can say I am thrilled just to be pitching with a club that has a chance for a World Series check, but my biggest moment has to be the night I wicketed up my first major league win. It was at the expense of the Twins, the team that didn't give me a chance," Lasher said.

His wife, Judy, a native of Bismark, North Dakota, will be in Chicago this weekend, hoping to see her husband pitch in the majors for the first time. They have two girls, the oldest four years and the youngest seven weeks.

Lasher's mother, Lena, still resides in Poughkeepsie and works at Schatz-Federal Bearings in the Bridge City.

After a long apprenticeship in the minors, Lasher is hopeful his stay at the top will be a long and pleasant one.

Expected Some Friends
When the Tigers play in New York on Sept. 25 and 26 against the Yankees, Lasher is expecting many of his friends from Poughkeepsie will be in attendance.
What will he be doing after the season? "I don't know. We lived with my brother in Middletown last year, but haven't made any plans as yet," he said.
Whatever happens, the sudden rise of Fred Lasher as a top relief chucker with a pennant contender has to be one of the Cinderella stories of a hectic year in baseball.

Giants Take 2nd Position In NL Race

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
Nobody likes to be second best but it'll do just fine for one of five teams in the National League's September struggle.

Just five games separate five clubs who hope to play bridesmaid to St. Louis this season. The Cardinals, headed for the pennant, hold a commanding 10½ game lead but after that it's an oldtime National League scramble.

In the second place showdown game Friday night, San Francisco trimmed Chicago 4-3 and took the lead in the runner-up derby.

Pittsburgh went 10 innings before edging the first-place Cardinals 4-3; Philadelphia dropped Atlanta 4-1; Cincinnati split with New York, winning 3-0 before losing 5-4, and Los Angeles topped Houston 4-2.

The Giants were trailing the Cubs 3-2 with two out in the bottom of the ninth. But Jimmy Davenport's pinch triple drove home Jim Hart with the tying run and then pitcher Ray Sadecki singled Davenport across with the winner for the Giants' seventh straight victory.

Hart had doubled and tripled, scoring each of the Giants' first two runs against Joe Niekro. Sadecki allowed six hits and all the Cubs' runs in the first three innings and then settled down, permitting just two hits the rest of the way.

The victory but the Giants a full game up on the Cubs and 1½ in front of fourth-place Cincinnati. The Reds got a sharp two-hitter from Mel Queen, who shut out the Mets in the first game. But rookie Tom Seaver beat Cincinnati in the nightcap.

Queen struck out 10 and got all the offense he needed in the second inning when Leo Cardenas singled one run home and Tommy Harper drove in two more with a hit.

Seaver got late-inning help from Ron Taylor and recorded his 13th victory, tying the Met club record set by Al Jackson in 1963. Tony Perez and Vada Pinson homered for the Reds.

Philadelphia, in fifth place, is four games back of the Giants, after beating Atlanta and dropping the sixth-place Braves five games back.

Rick Wise hurled a four-hitter for his first career victory over the Braves and Bill White's bases-loaded single keyed a three-run Phillie first. Joe Torre homered for Atlanta.

Gene Alley tripled, opening the 10th inning for Pittsburgh, and then scored on Marv Willis' single as the Pirates edged the Cardinals. It was only the third loss in the last 10 games for St. Louis and all of them have been against Pittsburgh.

Alley's two-out, hit-and-run double had scored Roberto Clemente with the tying run in the eighth for the Pirates.

Ron Fairly cracked a two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning as Los Angeles tagged Houston with its ninth straight loss. Jimmy Wynn homered for the Astros.

Bosox Beaten by Monbo

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Bill Monbouquette doesn't hold a grudge against the Boston Red Sox. He just pitches that way.

Monbouquette, traded away by the Red Sox last season and ignored by them when he was released by Detroit this season, hurled the New York Yankees to a 5-2 victory over his former teammates Friday night, preventing them from taking over first place in the American League.

That spot went to both Detroit, conqueror of Chicago by a 4-1 count, and Minnesota, which split a doubleheader with Baltimore, 7-2 and 3-5. The Red Sox are in third place, half a game out, and the White Sox are a full game off the pace.

"I think it only natural to get satisfaction in beating a team which lets you go," Monbouquette said after the game. "Don't get me wrong, though, I hope the Red Sox win the pennant. I have a lot of friends on the club."

The 31-year-old right-hander has pitched brilliantly for the Yankees, the only team that would take a chance on him when the Tigers cut him loose earlier in the season.

Against the Red Sox, he allowed eight hits and struck out four before leaving the game in the seventh. Just to rub it in, he singled twice and scored a run.

In other American League action Friday, Cleveland topped Kansas City 6-3 and California blanked Washington 4-0.

Save for Lasher

The Tigers climbed into the first-place tie on the strength of homers by Eddie Mathews and Jim Northrup and fine pitching by Mickey Lolich, who got relief help from Fred Lasher.

Mathews' shot was his 15th since joining the Tigers, his fifth of the season and the 508th of his career. Up ahead looms Mel Ott with 511 lifetime homers, sixth on the all-time list.

In Baltimore, the Twins made threatening noises in the late innings of the nightcap, but Pete Richert proved equal to the task and pitched his way out of two jams.

He got out Cesar Tovar and Harmon Killebrew with two runners on in the seventh and extricated himself from a bases-loaded, none-out jam with just one run in the eighth.

The Orioles scored four runs in the second, one on Dave Johnson's homer. In the opener, Killebrew hit a two-run shot and Jim Merritt hurtled a six-hitter.

Tony Horton hit a grand slam homer in the first inning in the Indians' triumph over the Athletics, and Rickey Clark threw a two-hitter for the Angels, beating the Senators.

Football Crusaders Play Long Island Jets Sunday

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Sports Editor

If you weren't at Dietz Stadium last Sunday night, you missed a lot of fun.

The Hudson Valley Crusaders returned semi-pro football to Kingston with a 17-6 victory over the Golden Bears of Stamford, Conn.

Tomorrow night (Sunday) at 6:30 the Crusaders will be back to take on the highly touted Long Island Jets in what promises to be another night of tumultuous grass roots football.

The word has gotten around since last week and it wouldn't be surprising if the smartly dressed Crusaders attracted more fans than the surprise total of 800 for the opener.

With only limited advance buildup, the Crusaders drew the largest sports crowd seen at Dietz Stadium in a decade. The turnout was a tribute to the fascinating grip pro football has on the American sports public. It is doubtful if Mickey Mantle could draw 800 to a baseball game at Dietz these days.

Roger Myrick Impresses

Manuel Rodriguez and Gar Withers received the advance billing in the quarterback speculation, but the Crusaders may have come up with their own version of Johnny Unitas

in Roger Myrick, former Beacon High star.

Myrick bulled his way 5 yards up the middle for one of the Kingston TD's to climax a 43-yard advance in which he gained 36 yards in five carries. He picked the team up after Rodriguez started and had them rolling smoothly at the finish.

The offensive backfield of Myrick, Murray Mulligan, Dave Mallory and Clarence Wright showed flashes of power after a faltering start. With the invaluable first game experience behind them, the Crusaders figure to be a smoother working outfit against the Jets.

Melvin Bennett, a 6 foot, 220 pounder was outstanding on defense. So were Chip MacDowell, Jim Gordon and Fred Bragg. Don Roman, the defensive right end, blocked the Stamford try for extra point.

Kicker Tracey Clicked

Then there is always Bob Tracey, the Scottish born former rugby star, who kicked two extra points and a 20-yard field goal in his Kingston debut. He looks like a handy guy to have around for the close ones.

The football at Dietz Stadium this Sunday should be higher grade than last week. Don't forget the Crusaders are not in the habit of losing. Last year at Poughkeepsie they compiled a 9-1 record. They aim to do as well this year.

Ex-PHS Star

Lasher Aids Tigers

BY ED PALLADINO

Freeman Sports Staff

When the Detroit Tigers moved into a first place tie in the scrambled American League pennant race with a 4-1 win Friday night over Eddie Stanky's Chicago White Sox, rookie Fred Lasher picked up his sixth save of the season.

If the Tigers go on to win the pennant in the junior circuit, Lasher will be on cloud nine and the Minnesota Twins will be kicking themselves on the backside. Just a year ago, they had the relief chucker in their farm system and gave him a release.

Lasher is a 26-year-old graduate of Poughkeepsie High School. He was an All-DESO selection in 1959 and has spent eight years in professional baseball. Except for a brief fling at the beginning and during the last month of the '63 season with the Twins, he has been pitching in the minors.

After his release by the Twins, the hard throwing righty was drafted by the Tigers and sent to their Montgomery (Class AA) club of the Southern League. He compiled a nifty 8-1 record with an earned run average of .068 before being promoted to Toledo (Class AAA) of the International League. This event took place on July 24. Just 16 days later he was brought up by the Tigers.

Lasher, a quiet spoken and modest young man was pleasantly surprised by the Detroit move. John Podres, the veteran lefty, was placed on the disabled list and Fred Gladding, the early season bullpen wonder, had trouble retiring anybody.

Win Over Twins

Since his recall a month ago today, Lasher has saved those six big games and has picked up a victory in relief. Over who? You guessed it—the Minnesota Twins.

FRED LASHER

We talked to Lasher at the Sheraton Hotel in Chicago and he just couldn't get over the close race in the American League.

"Naturally, we in Detroit feel we are going to win the flag. Our hitting compares favorably with the other contenders and in Al Kaline, we have the best player in the league. If we survive this four game series in Chicago, we will be home for games with Baltimore, Boston, Washington and the Yankees and will be in a good position to make a drive," Lasher said.

When questioned about his sudden success, the Poughkeepsie native said his fast ball, which both rises and sinks, has been his best pitch. "When you pitch in relief, you're told to go with your best pitch. Mine is the fast ball."

Took a Chance

He denied having had arm trouble but said the Twins never had confidence in him. When it appeared as if we were never going to get another chance with Minnesota, Lasher asked for a release. The Twins obliged, Detroit took a chance and Lasher has repaid the club with his superlative relief work. Fred confines his pitching talents exclusively to the bullpen. Even in the minors he has been a relief pitcher and it's been in this role that he is keeping the Tigers in the thick of the race.

"You can say I am thrilled just to be pitching with a club that has a chance for a World Series check but my biggest moment has to be the night I picked up my first major league win. It was at the expense of the Twins, the team that didn't give me a chance," Lasher said.

His wife, Judy, a native of Bismark, North Dakota, will be in Chicago this weekend, hoping to see her husband pitch in the majors for the first time. They have two girls, the oldest four years and the youngest seven weeks.

Lasher's mother, Lena, still resides in Poughkeepsie and works at Schatz-Federal Bearings in the Bridge City.

After a long apprenticeship in the minors, Lasher is hopeful his stay at the top will be a long and pleasant one.

Expects Some Friends

When the Tigers play in New York on Sept. 25 and 26 against the Yankees, Lasher is expecting many of his friends from Poughkeepsie will be in attendance.

What will he be doing after the season? "I don't know. We lived with my brother in Middletown last year, but haven't made any plans as yet," he said. Whatever happens, the sudden rise of Fred Lasher as a top relief chucker with a pennant contender has to be one of the cinderella stories of a hectic year in baseball.

Giants Take 2nd Position In NL Race

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

Nobody likes to be second best but it'll do just fine for one of five teams in the National League's September struggle.

Just five games separate five clubs who hope to play bridesmaid to St. Louis this season. The Cardinals, headed for the pennant, hold a commanding 10½ game lead but after that it's an oldtime National League scramble.

In the second place showdown game Friday night, San Francisco trimmed Chicago 4-3 and took the lead in the runner-up derby.

Pittsburgh went 10 innings before edging the first-place Cardinals 4-3; Philadelphia dropped Atlanta 4-1; Cincinnati split with New York, winning 3-0 before losing 5-4, and Los Angeles topped Houston 4-2.

The Giants were trailing the Cubs 3-2 with two out in the bottom of the ninth. But Jimmy Davenport's pinch triple drove home Jim Hart with the tying run and then pitcher Ray Sadecki singled Davenport across with the winner for the Giants' seventh straight victory.

Hart had doubled and tripled, scoring each of the Giants' first two runs against Joe Niekro. Sadecki allowed six hits and all the Cubs' runs in the first three innings and then settled down, permitting just two hits the rest of the way.

The victory but the Giants a full game up on the Cubs and 1½ in front of fourth-place Cincinnati. The Reds got a sharp two-hitter from Mel Queen, who shut out the Mets in the first game. But rookie Tom Seaver beat Cincinnati in the nightcap, permitting just two hits the rest of the way.

Bosox Beaten by Monbo

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Bill Monbouquette doesn't hold a grudge against the Boston Red Sox. He just pitches that way.

Monbouquette, traded away by the Red Sox last season and ignored by them when he was released by Detroit this season, hurled the New York Yankees to a 5-2 victory over his former teammates Friday night, preventing them from taking over first place in the American League.

That spot went to both Detroit, conqueror of Chicago by a 4-1 count, and Minnesota, which split a doubleheader with Baltimore, 7-2 and 3-5. The Red Sox are in third place, half a game out, and the White Sox are a full game out of the race.

"I think it only natural to get satisfaction in beating a team which lets you go," Monbouquette said after the game. "Don't get me wrong, though, I hope the Red Sox win the pennant. I have a lot of friends on the club."

The 31-year-old right-hander has pitched brilliantly for the Yankees, the only team that would take a chance on him when the Tigers cut him loose earlier in the season.

Against the Red Sox, he allowed eight hits and struck out four before leaving the game in the seventh. Just to rub it in, he singled twice and scored a run.

In other American League action Friday, Cleveland topped Kansas City 6-3 and California blanked Washington 4-0.

Save for Lasher

The Tigers climbed into the first-place tie on the strength of homers by Eddie Mathews and Jim Northrup and fine pitching by Mickey Lolich, who got relief help from Fred Lasher.

Mathews' shot was his fifth of the season and the 508th of his career. Up ahead looms Mel Ott with 511 lifetime homers, sixth on the all-time list.

In Baltimore, the Twins made threatening noises in the late innings of the nightcap, but Pete Richert proved equal to the task and pitched his way out of two jams.

He got out Cesar Tovar and Harmon Killebrew with two runners on in the seventh and extricated himself from a bases-loaded, none-out jam with just one run in the eighth.

The Orioles scored four runs in the second, one on Dave Johnson's homer. In the opener, Killebrew hit a two-run shot and Jim Merritt hurtled a six-hitter.

Tony Horton hit a grand slam homer in the first inning in the Indians' triumph over the Athletics, and Rickey Clark threw a two-hitter for the Angels, beating the Senators.

Graebner, Scott
In Semi-Finals

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — They call themselves the "steely boys" because both use the new, revolutionary steel rackets.

When the National Tennis Championships began, you could have got 100-1 odds that the two of them wouldn't get to the semifinals. They've both been in the Davis Cup doghouse and neither is pointing to a job for winning back the big trophy.

But they're America's new and surprising hopes today when this aged grass court classic decided who will play for the men's singles crown in Sunday's final. The United States hasn't had a champion since Tony Trabert in 1955.

They are Clark Graebner, 23, bespectacled, scholarly-looking son of a Cleveland dentist, renowned largely as a doubles specialist, and Gene Scott, 29, a Yale graduate, a practicing lawyer on Wall Street who is only a part-time tournament player.

Both pulled staggering upsets in the quarter-finals Friday to give American tennis a shot in the arm that it hasn't had in nearly a decade.

Graebner, seeded seventh, used a crackling service and a pair of strong, halfback legs in winning a three-hour cliffhanger from Roy Emerson of Australia, twice winner of this tournament, 8-6, 3-6, 19-17, 6-1. The third set alone lasted 1½ hours.

Scott, who has played only four tournaments this summer and is ranked 16th nationally, turned back Owen Davidson, the big Australian southpaw 6-3, 8-6, 9-7.

Has Two Stroke Edge
In Women's Tourney

JUNCTION CITY, Ore. (AP) — Pixie-like Clifford Ann Creed has used the "longest putt of my life" to take the lead after one round of the Pacific Ladies Professional Golf Classic.

The 5-foot-4 professional stroked in an uphill 60-footer Friday for an eagle three on Shadow Hills Country Club's par five 18th hole and finished with a three-under-par 69.

Her subpar round was good enough for a two-stroke lead over Seattle's Ruth Jensen as a record field of 39 pros and one amateur competed today in the second round of the 54-hole tournament.

Graebner, Scott
In Semi-Finals

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — They call themselves the "steely boys" because both use the new, revolutionary steel rackets.

When the National Tennis Championships began, you could have got 100-1 odds that the two of them wouldn't get to the semifinals. They've both been in the Davis Cup doghouse and neither is pointing to a job for winning back the big trophy.

But they're America's new and surprising hopes today when this aged grass court classic decided who will play for the men's singles crown in Sunday's final. The United States hasn't had a champion since Tony Trabert in 1955.

They are Clark Graebner, 23, bespectacled, scholarly-looking son of a Cleveland dentist, renowned largely as a doubles specialist, and Gene Scott, 28, a Yale graduate, a practicing lawyer on Wall Street who is only a part-time tournament player.

Both pulled staggering upsets in the quarter-finals Friday to give American tennis a shot in the arm that it hasn't had in nearly a decade.

Graebner, seeded seventh, used a crackling service and a pair of strong, halfback legs in winning a three-hour cliffhanger from Roy Emerson of Australia, twice winner of this tournament, 6-3, 3-6, 19-17, 6-1. The third set alone lasted 1½ hours.

Scott, who has played only four tournaments this summer and is ranked 16th nationally, turned back Owen Davidson, the big Australian southpaw 6-3, 8-6, 9-7.

Has Two Stroke Edge
In Women's Tourney

JUNCTION CITY, Ore. (AP) — Pixie-like Clifford Ann Creed has used the "longest putt of my life" to take the lead after one round of the Pacific Ladies Professional Golf Classic.

The 5-foot-4 professional stroked in an uphill 60-footer Friday for an eagle three on Shadow Hills Country Club's par five 18th hole and finished with a three-under-par 69.

Her subpar round was good enough for a two-stroke lead over Seattle's Ruth Jensen as a record field of 39 pros and one amateur competed today in the second round of the 54-hole tournament.

Returning Lettermen
Boost OCS Grid Hopes

"Our offense looks good and the defense should show a vast improvement over last season. We are looking forward to the coming year," is the way coach Paul Jordan describes his Onteora High football team.

The Indians commence their schedule on Saturday, Sept. 16 with a non-league engagement at Red Hook.

Jordan, who has been one of the most successful grid coaches in the Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL), plans to carry a 33-man roster.

Several boys from last year's talented jayvee club are expected to bolster the varsity squad. Jordan expects plenty of help from guard Russ Holt, halfbacks Paul and Pete Morey, twin brothers; defensive backs Tom Reilly and Jay Morey; tackle Greg Miller, center Art DeNapoli and quarterback Jim Marchio.

Other hopefuls include guards Warren Kraus, Tom Raffaldi and Joe Kreis, flankers Dan Waters and Mike Patrick, place kicking specialist John Stoothoff, tackles Mike Sims, Bob Klementis and George Sullivan and end Wayne Simpson. Highland, which won league honors last year, is tabbed by Jordan as the team to beat. He is also wary of Liberty and Pine Bush.

"Whichever school wins the league will have to beat us. We are looking forward to the coming season and have high hopes of improving our 4-4 record," he added.

Dede Hanover Cops Feature

MONTICELLO, N.Y. — Dede Hanover, a filly by Caleb owned by Mel and Laura Fieramosca, won the $10,000 two-year-old trotting championship at Monticello Raceway last night, coming from off the pace to upset favored Clotina Hanover in 2:10.2.

Driven by Robert Camper, Dede Hanover, a nine-year-old, lifetime claim, in nine starts, to take the juvenile title. Camper had her third behind the pace-setting Spy Princess driven by Al Burton, with Bill Vaughan second over the first half on Paulita Hanover. Clotina trailed at the three-quarters and nosed in front only temporarily.

That gave Dede Hanover an opportunity to unveil a good finishing spurt to pass the other.

Dear Abby

Practical Joke-or a Gift

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My daughter was married last Saturday at a beautiful, large church wedding, and she and her husband are now away on her honeymoon trip. She asked me to open any wedding gifts that came in her absence, so I have. Today she received a big gift-wrapped box filled with baby things, disposable diapers, rattles, baby powder, etc.
If this is someone's idea of a joke, I fail to see the humor in it. What is your opinion of such a gift to a bride?

HER MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: If she's not pregnant, it's a practical joke. If she is, it's a practical gift.

DEAR ABBY: Why are men so inconsiderate? My husband asks me out for dinner with an hour's notice, and I always have to say no. If he had asked me in the morning I could have had my hair done so I'd look nice for dinner.

He bought expensive tickets to a sports event and asked me to go the night before. Since he usually works on Saturdays I had the day pretty well outlined and there are some things you can't change the last minute, so I told him to invite a fellow. He was annoyed.

He used to ask me for a date in plenty of time before we were married. Why not now? He said if I really loved him I'd drop everything just to be with him. I DO love him, but I'd like to train him to know he can't get me on an hour's notice. Am I wrong?
"CINCY"
DEAR "CINCY": Lady, you are crying "famine" with a loaf of bread under each arm. If you don't have a portable hair dryer, buy one and put your hair up at the last minute. Or buy a few turbans for those days when your hair needs doing. Rearrange your schedule, but always be available, or you're apt to "train" him to quit asking you and to make other last-minute arrangements.

DEAR ABBY: I will be married in a couple of weeks. My fiancé, Gary, and I get along very well, except for one detail. Ironing!

I have an exceptionally good job, and Gary wants me to continue working after we are married so we can put a substantial down-payment on a house. This is fine with me, but I feel as long as I will be working, I should at least be ironing. He wears 6 white shirts a week and that's a lot of ironing.

Gary thinks nothing of spending $5 a week to bowl with the boys, but he thinks it's ridiculous for me to spend 15 cents a shirt to have them ironed, when I can iron them myself on the night he bowls.

On that night I want some leisure time of my own. Am I wrong to feel this way?
FLORISSANT
DEAR FLORISSANT: No! Stand pat. And how wise you are to iron out all these knotty little problems before you're married.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ETHEL IN BEVERLY HILLS: Don't waste any more time on that bald-headed bachelor. He's the "detergent type"—works fast and leaves no ring.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Dear Abby

Practical Joke-or a Gift

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was married last Saturday at a beautiful, large church wedding, and she and her husband are now away on her honeymoon trip. She asked me to open any wedding gifts that came in her absence, so I have. Today she received a big gift-wrapped box filled with baby things, disposable diapers, rattles, baby powder, etc.

If this is someone's idea of a joke, I fail to see the humor in it. What is your opinion of such a gift to a bride?

HER MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: If she's not pregnant, it's a practical joke. If she is, it's a practical gift.

DEAR ABBY: Why are men so inconsiderate? My husband asks me out for dinner with an hour's notice, and I always have to say no. If he had asked me in the morning I could have had my hair done so I'd look nice for dinner.

He bought expensive tickets to a sports event and asked me to go the night before. Since he usually works on Saturdays I had the day pretty well outlined and there are some things you can't change the last minute, so I told him to invite a fellow. He was annoyed.

He used to ask me for a date in plenty of time before we were married. Why not now? He said if I really loved him I'd drop everything just to be with him. I DO love him, but I'd like to train him to know he can't get me on an hour's notice. Am I wrong?

DEAR "CINCY": Lady, you are crying "famine" with a loaf of bread under each arm. If you don't have a portable hair dryer, buy one and put your hair up at the last minute. Or buy a few turbans for those days when your hair needs doing. Rearrange your schedule, but always be available, or you're apt to "train" him to quit asking you and to make other last-minute arrangements.

DEAR ABBY: I will be married in a couple of weeks. My fiancé, Gary, and I get along very well, except for one detail. Ironing!

I have an exceptionally good job, and Gary wants me to continue working after we are married so we can put a substantial down-payment on a house. This is fine with me, but I feel as long as I will be working, I should at least be entitled to send Gary's shirts out to be ironed. He wears 6 white shirts a week and that's a lot of ironing.

Gary thinks nothing of spending $5 a week to bowl with the boys, but he thinks it's ridiculous for me to spend 15 cents a shirt to have them ironed, when I can iron them myself on the night he bowls.

On that night I want some leisure time of my own. Am I wrong to feel this way?

DEAR FLORESSANT: No! Stand pat. And how wise you are to iron out all these knotty little problems before you're married.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ETHEL IN BEVERLY HILLS: Don't waste any more time on that bald-headed bachelor. He's the

"detergent type"—works fast and leaves no ring.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Custer on TV: Humanized

By DEAN GYSEL
(Chicago Daily News Service)

In the noble tradition of Billy The Kid, a homicidal thug; Jesse James, a robber-murderer; and Wyatt Earp, gambler, gunman and card sharp, television now gives us George Armstrong Custer.

Already it has braved the slings and arrows of outraged Indians.

Several Indian organizations, including the National Congress of American Indians, have protested that ABC is glorifying not just an Indian fighter, but an exterminator who practices genocide against their ancestors.

Many Courageous Things

The star of the series, newcomer Wayne Maunders, says, "I didn't realize there was so much anti-Custer feeling until the series. Some say he was a madman, but I know he got credit for many (courageous) things in the Civil War."

"He also had a sense of humor and he admitted to a certain amount of vanity and ambition. He admired courage and the dash and color of soldiering."

Maunders, understandably defensive about the controversial character, contends, "The massacre where Custer is supposed to have slaughtered men and women was probably blown out of proportion. He was no more evil than other soldiers we've honored . . . Patton, MacArthur."

The massacre was Custer's destruction of a Cheyenne village on the banks of the Washita River in Oklahoma on Nov. 27, 1868. Custer said he killed 103 "warriors" and captured 53 women and children. However, most of those "warriors" were women and children.

Maunders says, "We're going to modify the character. We'll humanize him. There will be a certain amount of vanity, and we will bring out his rebellious nature."

One modification in the series already has been the deletion of the character of Maj. Marcus A. Reno, who was to have been portrayed somewhat as a villain.

History has redeemed Reno to a certain extent, and many historians have exonerated him of cowardice at the Little Big Horn, where Custer gained his greatest fame: that of leading 263 men to their death in a classic military blunder.

One of seven Westerns

Custer is one of seven new Westerns: Cowboy in Africa, Hondo, and the Guns of Will Sonnett, all on ABC; Dundee and the Culhane and Cimarron Strip on CBS; and High Chaparral on NBC.

Cowboy in Africa stars Chuck Connors as a rodeo champion working for a conservationist; Cimarron Strip stars Stuart Whitman as a marshal in the Oklahoma Panhandle in 1888, and Dundee and the Culhane features English actor John Mills and newcomer Sean Garrison as frontier lawyers.

Hondo is based on the John Wayne movie about a frontiersman who tries to be a peacemaker and buffer between the army and the Indians. Ralph Taeger plays the title role.

The Guns of Will Sonnett is the odyssey of Walter Brennan and Dick Rambo, as grandchild of Will Sonnett and his grandson, who search for the boy's father. Brennan, who must be 107 years old, is billed as the fastest gun in the west.

High Chaparral is an hour long series about the Cannon family's effort to establish a cattle ranch near Tucson, Ariz., in the 1870s. The leads are played by Leif Erickson as the patriarch, Cameron Mitchell as his brother, and Linda Cristal as Erickson's Indian wife.

Robertson and the late George Heath.

Like most old-timers, Bob retained his skill as a dummy player and could pick up overtricks when the defense gave him a chance.

West's opening heart lead gave him such a chance even though East made the good play of the seven of hearts instead of the king. Bob won with the nine and led the nine of spades to East's jack. East's best play would have been a diamond but East played the six of clubs.

Bob won that trick with the ten and came up with a key play. He laid down his ace of hearts. Bob was sure that West did not open a four card suit and therefore East could have but one more heart. Bob didn't know it was the king but he didn't really care. He wanted to strip East of a potential exit card. When the king of hearts fell Bob played a heart to dummy's queen. He didn't mind setting up tricks for West because he wasn't going to let West in the lead any time. East had to let a diamond go. He could not afford to throw away a black card.

A club lead and queen finesse came next. Then Bob cashed his ace of clubs and led another club to East's king. He let a couple of dummy's diamonds go on those two clubs. East could do nothing but take his ace of diamonds and give up.

One no-trump making four isn't anything sensational in rubber bridge but this was worth a top score in an important duplicate game.

Custer on TV: Humanized

By DEAN GYSEL
(Chicago Daily News Service)

In the noble tradition of Billy the Kid, a homicidal thug; Jesse James, a robber-murderer, and Wyatt Earp, gambler, gunman and card sharp, television now gives us George Armstrong Custer.

Already it has braved the slings and arrows of outraged Indians.

Several Indian organizations, including the National Congress of Indians and the Tribal Indian Land Rights Assn., have protested that ABC is glamorizing not just an Indian fighter, but an exterminator who practices genocide against their ancestors.

Many Courageous Things

The star of the series, newcomer Wayne Maunier, says, "I didn't realize there was so much anti-Custer feeling until the series. Some say he was a maniac, but I know he got credit for many (courageous) things in the Civil War."

"He also had a sense of humor and he admitted to a certain amount of vanity and ambition. He admired courage and the dash and color of soldiering."

Maunier, understandably defensive about the controversial character, contends, "the massacre where Custer is supposed to have slaughtered men and women was probably blown out of proportion. He was no more evil than other soldiers we've honored . . . Patton, MacArthur."

The massacre was Custer's destruction of a Cheyenne village on the banks of the Washita River in Oklahoma on Nov. 27, 1868. Custer said he killed 103 "warriors" and captured 53 women and children. However, most of those "warriors" were women and children.

Maunier says "We're going to modify the character. We'll humanize him. There will be a certain amount of vanity, and we will bring out his rebellious nature."

One modification in the series already has been the deletion of the character of Maj. Marcus A. Reno, who was to have been portrayed somewhat as a villain.

History has redeemed Reno to a certain extent, and many historians have exonerated him of cowardice at the Little Big Horn, where Custer gained his greatest fame: that of leading 263 men to their death in a classic military blunder.

One of Seven Westerns

Custer is one of seven westerns: Cowboy in Africa, Hondo, and the Guns of Will Sonnett, all on ABC; Dundee and Culhane and Cimarron Strip on CBS; and High Chaparral on NBC.

Cowboy in Africa stars Chuck Connors as a rodeo champion working for a conservationist; Cimarron Strip stars Stuart Whitman as a marshal in the Oklahoma Panhandle in 1888, and Dundee and the Culhane features English actor John Mills and newcomer Sean Garrison as frontier lawyers.

Hondo is based on the John Wayne movie about a frontiersman who tries to be a peacemaker and buffer between the army and the Indians. Ralph Taeger plays the title role.

The Guns of Will Sonnett is the odyssey of Walter Brennan and Dick Rambo, as grandfather Will Sonnett and his grandson, who search for the boy's father. Brennan, who must be 107 years old, is billed as the fastest gun in the west.

High Chaparral is an hour long series about the Cannon family's effort to establish a cattle ranch near Tucson, Ariz., in the 1870s. The leads are played by Leif Erickson as the patriarch, Cameron Mitchell as his brother, and Linda Cristal is Erickson's Indian wife.

County 4-H Youth Report Given For State Fair Participation

4-H youth from Ulster County recently participated in the many 4-H activities and exhibits at the New York State Fair at Syracuse held Aug. 29 through Sept. 4. "These youth are to be congratulated on their exhibits and participation as Ulster County can be very proud of their achievements at the Fair," a 4-H spokesman said. The State Fair represents the culmination of many 4-H programs and activities conducted throughout the year in various 4-H project areas. Selection for participation at the State Fair is an honor and is based on the 4-H members achievement and activities at the Ulster County Fair.

Ulster County had several 4-H members selected to present demonstrations at the 4-H Youth Building during the State Fair. Helen Boice of Lake Katrine presented a Foods Demonstration while Anna Mary Portz of Hurley gave her demonstration in Home Improvement. Jayne Lyke of Lomontville presented her's in clothing while Larry Powell of Wallkill gave a demonstration on Rifle Safety in the Conservation Booth and Bruce McCord of New Hurley conducted a work booth lecture on Dairy Science. Sandi DuBois of New Paltz worked in the 4-H Clothing Demonstration Booth. All of these members were selected on the basis of their achievement at County and District 4-H Demonstration programs in the fall and spring.

Livestock Exhibitions

Three 4-H members exhibited their dairy animals and one local youth a beef calf. Exhibiting this year were Terry Cosh of Gardiner — Holstein Junior Yearling, a red award; Karen Maier, Wallkill — Holstein Senior Yearling, red award and Richard Tuohy, Wallkill — Jersey Junior calf, blue award. Patrick Caruso of High Falls received a white award with his beef heifer. Karen Maier also qualified in the 4-H Dairy Showmanship finals and received a blue award.

One of the highlights in the 4-H clothing program is the State 4-H Dress Revue Program. In this contest one or two girls from each County are selected to participate. Representing Ulster County were Dolores Hofler, Hurley and Susan Schoonmaker of High Falls. The girls were judged on their skill in clothing construction, modeling ability and overall 4-H achievement.

A popular activity at the State Fair is the annual tractor driving event which consists of a written examination and driving to test the members' skill in operation and safety. Selected from the County tractor event were Charles Van Alst of Stone Ridge. Both boys advanced to the preliminary contest and received a red rating.

4-H Judging Teams

Ulster County was represented with three judging teams in Dairy, Light Horse and Vegetable Crops. 4-H youth were selected on the basis of their participation at numerous training sessions. The Light Horse Judging Team excelled as they placed fifth in the State with 37 county team competing. High individual for the county was Steven Lefevre of New Paltz. The other team members were Linda Every, New Salem; Janine Cave, Lomontville and Elizabeth Edmunds of Wallkill. The 4-H Dairy Judging Team which ranked 41st was composed of Doug McCord, Gardiner (who advanced to the finals); Karen Maier, Wallkill; Bruce McCord, New Hurley and Mike Warren of High Falls.

The 4-H Vegetable Judging

Team composed of John Briggs, Hurley; Bruce and Gary McCord, New Hurley and Larry Powell of Wallkill, placed 15th overall in the contest. Judging is an excellent method of teaching and requires time and effort to be selected for State Fair participation.

Over 100 exhibits were selected from the County Fair to be entered in Home Economics and Agriculture at the State Fair. A breakdown of the exhibits in Foods, Clothing, Handicraft and Vegetables follows:

Redemptorists Adding Students and Faculty

The fall enrollment of Mt. St. Alphonsus, Esopus, has been augmented by 39 young men from Thailand, Brazil and some dozen other mid-western states—students from another Redemptorist House of Studies located at Oconomowoc, Wis.

Reason for the increase is that Redemptorist regional superiors of the eastern and central sectors of the U.S. have agreed to pool teaching resources for one fully staffed theologate for the mutual advantage of both. Along with the 39 students, five professors from Oconomowoc plus a priest-librarian and a spiritual prefect are being added to the faculty of Mt. St. Alphonsus. A sixth professor is being loaned from Canada.

On Trial Basis

The move is tentative. The Redemptorist superior general in Rome has granted permission for a one year trial of the experiment. All involved, however, hope that it will become a permanent arrangement since among other benefits, it will relieve a shortage of missionary manpower by eliminating the need of a second staff of seminarian professors for the training of young Redemptorists.

Complementing the present faculty at Esopus are the following teachers: Father Gerard Owens CSSR, 56, Dogmatic Theology; Father Maurice Zeller, CSSR, 42, Moral Theology; Father Edward Day, CSSR, 40, Father

Hurley GOP Meets

The first fall meeting of the Hurley Republican Club will be held Tuesday at Rolling Acres Restaurant, Glenford, starting 8 p. m.

Fred DuBois, county treasurer, will be guest speaker and C. H. DuMond, president, will preside.

All interested residents of the Town of Hurley may attend. Meetings are held the second Tuesday of the month September through June.

er James Mittelstadt, CSSR, 32, Dogmatic Theology; Father Roger Marchand, CSSR, 30, Liturgy; Father John Parnick, CSSR, 31, Homiletics and Religious Education. Father George Rasseley, CSSR, 30, will act as librarian and Father Joseph Billsley, CSSR, 46, will share the office of Spiritual Prefect with Father William Geiger, CSSR.

A chartered bus brought the students from the Land of Lakes to the Hudson Valley in three days with evening stopovers at two Redemptorist retreat houses en route—Glenview, Ill., and Canandaigua.

Representing Ulster County were Dolores Hofler, Hurley and Susan Schoonmaker of High Falls. The girls were judged on their skill in clothing construction, modeling ability and overall 4-H achievement.

A popular activity at the State Fair is the annual tractor driving event which consists of a written examination and driving to test the members' skill in operation and safety. Selected from the County tractor event were Charles Van Alst of New Paltz and Ralph Van Aken of Stone Ridge. Both boys advanced to the preliminary contest and received a red rating.

4-H Judging Teams

Ulster County was represented with three judging teams in Dairy, Light Horse and Vegetable Crops. 4-H youth were selected on the basis of their participation at numerous training sessions. The Light Horse Judging Team, which placed fifth in the State with 37 county team competitors. High individual for the county was Steven Lefevre of New Paltz. The other team members were Linda Every, New Salem; Janine Cave, Lomontville and Elizabeth Edmunds of Wallkill. The 4-H Dairy Judging Team which ranked 41st was composed of Doug McCord, Gardiner (who advanced to the finals); Karen Maier, Wallkill; Bruce McCord, New Hurley and Mike Warren of High Falls.

The 4-H Vegetable Judging

Team composed of John Briggs, Hurley; Bruce and Gary McCord, New Hurley and Larry Powell of Wallkill, placed 15th overall in the contest. Judging is an excellent method of teaching and requires time and effort to be selected for State Fair participation.

Evening Insurance Course at College

Ulster County Community College will offer an evening extension course for practicing insurance people at its Kingston Classroom Building starting this fall. President George B. Erbsstein, announced today.

The course, Part V of a Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriter Study Program, will deal with the important principles of management, accounting and finance.

It is being offered by the College in cooperation with the Hudson Valley Chapter of the Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriters Society.

"This course will afford an unusual opportunity for local members of the insurance industry to enter into the C.P.C.U. program and our society is pleased to be sponsoring it with the College," said John Levy, C.P.C.U., the local chapter's Education Chairman.

The course, to run for 30 weeks, will be offered on Thursday nights, starting Sept. 21, from 7 to 9:40 o'clock at the College's Kingston Classroom Building, 214 West Chestnut Street.

It is felt that an integration of the subject matter of this part of the C.P.C.U. study program, will enable practicing insurance people to better conduct their own affairs and also to better understand the total business programs of those they serve so their services will be properly related to all the pertinent factors.

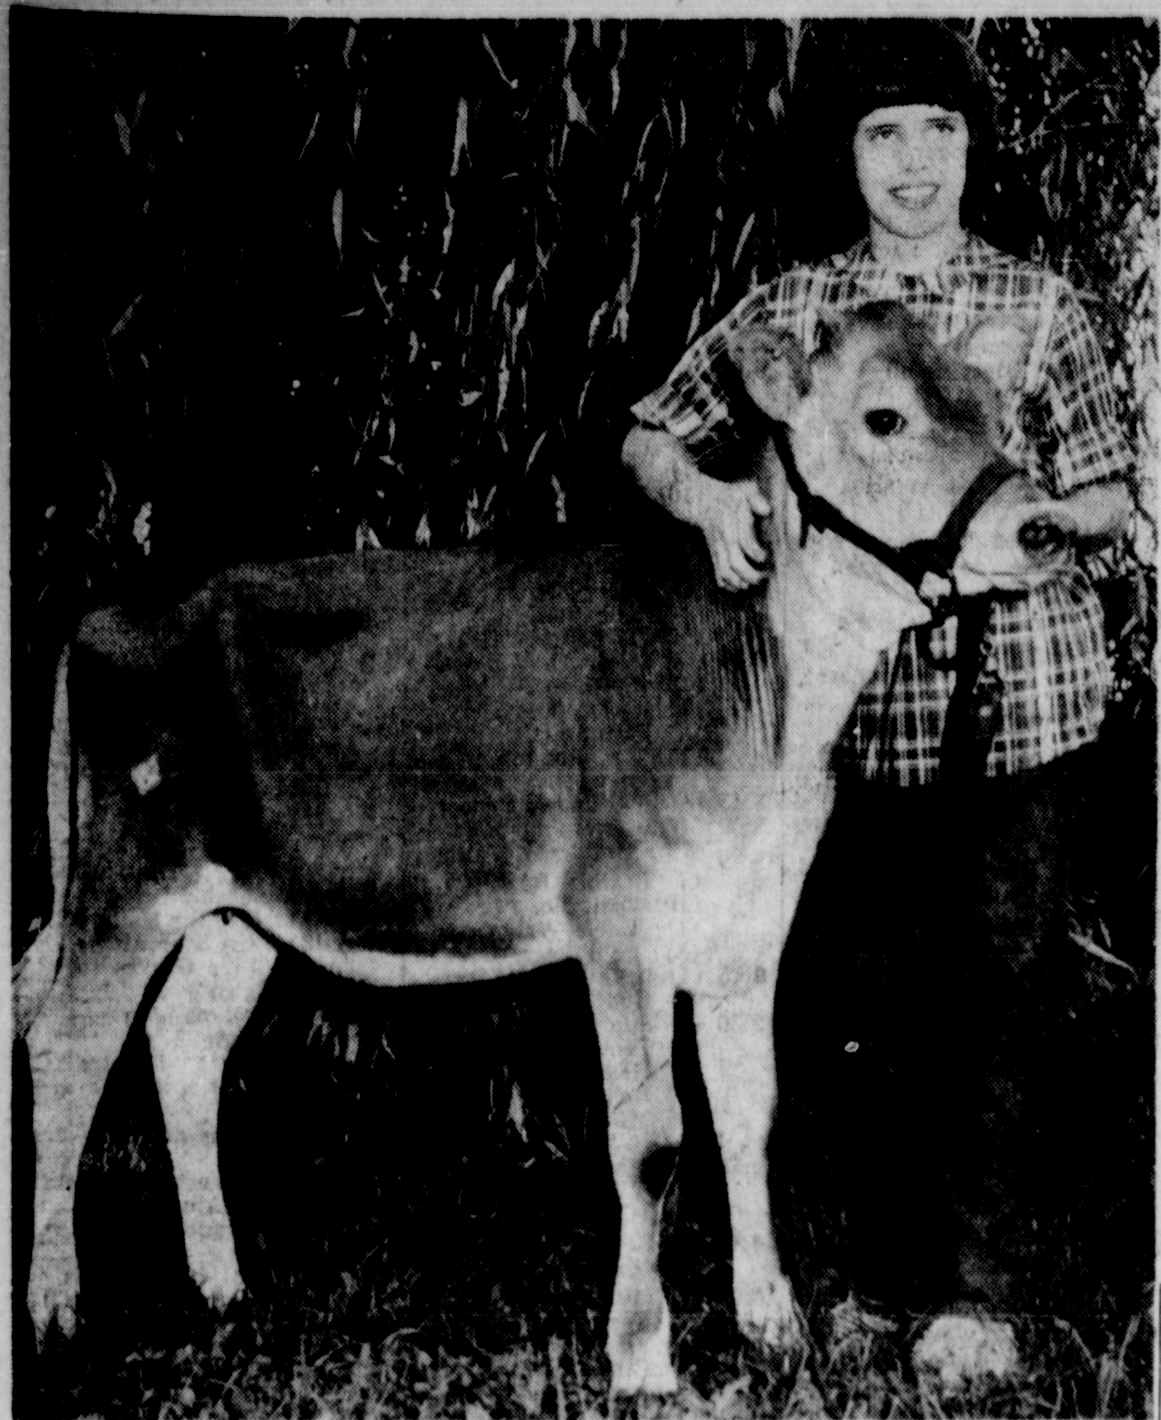

The course will deal with management principles to better enable the students to understand the structural organization of business enterprises and the exercise of the planning, leadership and control functions essential to sound decision-making.

Accounting and financial principles are included to give the students a set of interrelated analytical tools for developing the information on which sound decisions may be based and for measuring the performance of a business organization.

This course is one part of a five-part education program of the American Institute for Property and Liability Underwriters. The Institute grants the designation, Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriter, to those who pass five comprehensive examinations given for each of the five parts and who measure up to high standards of moral character and extensive insurance experience.

Further details on this Study Group may be obtained from James C. Haviland, Director of Community Services at the college.

Redemptorists Adding Students and Faculty

The fall enrollment of Mt. St. Alphonsus, Esopus, has been augmented by 39 young men from Thailand, Brazil and some dozen other mid-western states—students from another Redemptorist House of Studies located at Oconomowoc, Wis.

Reason for the increase is that Redemptorist regional superiors of the eastern and central sectors of the U.S. have agreed to pool teaching resources for one fully staffed theologate for the mutual advantage of both. Along with the 39 students, five professors from Oconomowoc plus a priest-librarian and a spiritual prefect are being added to the faculty of Mt. St. Alphonsus. A sixth professor is being loaned from Canada.

On Trial Basis

The move is tentative. The Redemptorist superior general in Rome has granted permission for a one year trial of the experiment. All involved, however, hope that it will become a permanent arrangement since among other benefits, it will relieve a shortage of missionary manpower by eliminating the need of a second staff of seminarian professors for the training of young Redemptorists.

Complementing the present faculty at Esopus are the following teachers: Father Gerard Owens CSSR, 56, Dogmatic Theology; Father Maurice Zeiler, CSSR, 42, Moral Theology; Father Edward Day, CSSR, 40, Father

Hurley GOP Meets

UCCC Instructor

Miss Mary Lou Raif has been appointed an instructor of health and physical education at Ulster County Community College, the first woman added to the faculty in this area. George B. Erbsstein, president, announced today.

Miss Raif, who previously taught for two years in Rochester, will teach physical education and recreation supervision courses at UCCC. In addition to her teaching experience, she has had experience as a playground director and as an instructor in gymnastics.

A native of Rochester, Miss Raif has a BS degree from the State University College of Arts and Science at Brockport and currently is working on her master's degree. She is a member of the New York State Teacher's Association and the New York State Association of Recreation, Health and Physical Education Teachers.

'Year of Event Television'—NBC's Approach to New Season

By DON ROYAL

NEW YORK — NBC's president Julian Goodman wasn't kidding when he announced that the '67-'68 video season would be the year of "Event Television" on the net — and the first event was the past week's rolling of eight pre-previews of shows which may make the home screens after Christmas, or in the '68-'69 season.

How much thunder this actually stole from the ABC-CBS debut showings will be the subject of some acrimonious debate for quite some time to come in certain video circles.

Meanwhile, back at the peacock farm, they'll be busy beginning this Sunday evening at airing the first of NBC's eight new series — six of them full-hour programs. Additionally, 17 series are continuing, six of which will be colorcast in new time periods.

"Event television," as described by Goodman, is to be more than NBC's roster of specials for the season. The elements of "topicality, surprise and singularity" are hopefully, to be instilled in all programming. Even the series offerings. For example: Raymond Burr's starring detective vehicle, "Ironside," could well come up with an episode or episodes keyed to current happenings and, in effect, be a true special, though part of a series.

With more than 50 specials already in programmer's hands there'll be—if you'll excuse the pun—a "star trek" of over 100 personalities during the season, ranging the alphabet from Don Adams through Norman Wisdom.

Since no one — but no one — can possibly keep all the new season's outpouring of cathode-tube events in mind, there'll be no attempt to give the complete season rundown. This paper's day-by-day listings is the place for that information. Here, are just a few tidbits to whet your viewing appetite:

Of special "special" interest in the drama department is the return once again of the widely watched Hallmark Hall of Fame presentations.

This season's schedule: "A Bell for Adamo," starring John Forsythe as Major Joppolo in the Paul Osborn adaptation of John Hersey's novel, Nov. 11. George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan," introducing French-Canadian Genevieve Bufo in the role of the Maid of Orleans, and co-starring Maurice Evans, Raymond Massey, Roddy McDowall, George Rose, Dec. 4. "Elizabeth the Queen," with Dame Judith Anderson as the Queen and Charlton Heston as the Lord Essex, Jan. 31. "Give Us Barabas," (repeat), with James Daly, Kim Hunter, Dennis King, March 29. "The Admirable Crichton," with Bill Travers, Virginia McKenna, May 2.

Eight specials in the "American Profile" series will be spotted throughout the season, beginning late this month.

NBC's "Experiment in Television," the series so well received last season, increases to 10 presentations, to begin airing early in the new year. The first show in production: English news writer John Lord is to write and produce a filmed-in-England special, using interviews with Britons who knew GI's stationed there in World War II, to build a word-and-atmosphere composite portrait of a man the viewing audience never sees, but comes to know well through the experiences of others.

The net's sports specials programming is highlighted by the early November trans-Pacific colorcast—first of its kind—via Lani Bird Satellite from Honolulu of the 1967 Hawaiian Open, Nov. 4-5. The $100,000 PGA tournament is to take place at the Waialae Country Club.

In the news department, expanded, regular-schedule broadcasts are expected to develop. Spot-story coverage of national and international events continues, and there'll be "gavel-to-gavel" coverage of the na-

Lief Erickson as John Cannon, and Cameron Mitchell as his brother Buck star in NBC's big-western-for-fall, "The High Chaparral." The season opener is a two-hour program, Sunday, Sept. 10, 9-11 p. m. Pacific and Eastern time, 8-10 Central time.

"Capt. Eddy," better known as Jerry Lewis, hams it up with Sonny and Cher in opening episode of "The Jerry Lewis Show," Tuesday, Sept. 12, 8-9 p. m. Pacific and Eastern time, 7-8 p. m. Central time.

A Mod Miss Twinkletoes

HOLLYWOOD — It's taken six years for Judy Carne finally to be cast for something she's best suited for — singing and dancing—in NBC-TV's Rowan and Martin Laugh-In special Sept. 9.

The cute British girl with chestnut hair and turned-up nose, who last season was in love on a Rooftop, is completely mystified at the strange workings of Hollywood.

"When I arrived here six years ago I looked like I do now!" exclaimed Judy, dressed Mod from her leather beanie to her boots.

"Of course, I was nowhere then," she glowered, "and they immediately dressed me in frilly things to make me look younger."

This carnage of the Carne image was to prepare her for Fair Exchange, an innocuous comedy which lasted only one season; then came another one, The Baileys of Balboa, which lasted only one season; and recently, Love on a Rooftop, which ... etc.

"You'll get your money the second season, just you wait, they kept telling me," laughs Judy. "Hah! I've never HAD a second season."

The petite girl, born in Northampton, Eng., figures she should return to London and do an art film, then come back here to be a part of the new cult which is "in" now.

"All my friends—Albert Finney, Rita Tushingham, Tony Newley—are now at the top while here I am hopefully just getting started," pouts Judy, a veteran of British stage musicals.

"This is why it's so difficult for someone like me to understand how they work here," she pondered. "Here they label you from the start. In England they tell you, 'For God's sake be an individual. Be different.' It's instilled in you from the beginning."

This is why Judy is so excited about the Rowan and Martin show. She's doing what she does best. Producer George

JUDY CARNE

Schlatter, in effect, has turned her loose. It's a great showcase for her.

Judy tipped that producers Schlatter and Ed Friendly have over 2½-hours of adult ("There's a lot of blue-line gags" entertainment. The show is billed as a variety-hour pilot for Rowan and Martin. And if the series casualty list runs true to form, the rest of that tape footage will be seen in a Rowan and Martin series beginning in January, or surely next summer.

Would three-time loser Judy go into another series?

"Not likely," she answers. "It's Heartbreak Harry. There's a number of specials coming up that I'll try for, plus Dean Martin and Smothers Brothers shows I've already signed to do."

"I don't think I could sweat out another series. It's terrible getting struck with the same character each week. Julie Wilis in Rooftop wasn't bad, but she wasn't any Holly Golightly (Audrey Hepburn in "Breakfast at Tiffany's") either. But then the people in the Midwest could never identify with such a kooky character, anyway."

On the Cover

Clockwise from 1 o'clock: "The Mothers-in-Law," "The Jerry Lewis Show," "Accidental Family," "The High Chaparral," "Maya," "Ironside," and, in the center, "The Danny Thomas Show." So where is the eighth new NBC show? The juggler, of course—to symbolize "The Kraft Music Hall," the net's prime-time variety hour.

tional pro political conventions. Let's turn, now, to new-series programming for the fall:

Sundays

"The Mothers-in-Law," comedy starring Eve Arden and Kaye Ballard as mothers-in-law of neighboring families, 8:30-9 p. m.

"The High Chaparral," tale of the taming of the Southwest, this regularly scheduled initial airing, bumping "Bonanza" for this evening only (Sept. 10). NBC has high hopes riding with Lief Erikson, Cameron Mitchell, Mark Slade, Linda Crystal and Henry Darrow on this one.

Monday

"The Danny Thomas Show," with Danny presiding over a weekly hour which will range from comedy through drama and to major specials, such as his opening "Wonderful World of Burlesque," 9-10 p. m.

Tuesdays

"The Jerry Lewis Show," with Jerry scheduled to recreate the many different characters for which he is famous. 8-9 p. m.

Wednesdays

"The Kraft Music Hall," a weekly variety hour, each a special in its own right. It's the 21st season for a Kraft-sponsored program on NBC, and the star-lineup for the production glitters. 9-10 p. m.

Thursdays

"Ironside," with Raymond Burr as Robert Ironside, a former chief of detectives, now confined to a wheelchair after being crippled in line of duty. In the story line he's a special consultant to the San Francisco police commissioner. 8:30-9:30 p. m.

Fridays

"Accidental Family," which took a giant step forward before airing by losing its original title, "Everywhere a Chick Chick." Jerry Van Dyke, as a divorced night club comedian suddenly given custody of his five-year-old son, begins a new life on a farm. 9:30-10 p. m.

Saturdays

"Maya," outdoor adventure filmed on location in India. Jay North and Sajid Khan star as teen-agers—an American lad searches for his father and an Indian lad who owns an elephant named "Maya." If this rings bells, the series is based initially on the MGM movie of the same title. Photography is said to be of exceptional beauty scenicwise. 7:30-8:30 p. m.

Movies

Tuesday and Saturday evenings, 9-11 p. m., are reserved in the programming schedule for NBC's prestige movie programming. Of the series returning (17 in the entire NBC schedule), five have new time slots, as follows:

"The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," MONDAYS, 8-9 p. m. "I Spy," MONDAYS, 10-11 p. m. "Jeanie," TUESDAYS, 7:30-8 p. m. "Run for Your Life," WEDNESDAYS, 10-11 p. m. "Star Trek," FRIDAYS, 8:30-9:30 p. m. "The Bell Telephone Hour" on FRIDAY evenings, alternately with the net's news specials, 10-11 p. m.

"Accidental Family," which took a giant step forward before airing by losing its original title, "Everywhere a Chick Chick." Jerry Van Dyke, as a divorced night club comedian suddenly given custody of his five-year-old son, begins a new life on a farm. 9:30-10 p. m.

Saturdays

"Maya," outdoor adventure filmed on location in India. Jay North and Sajid Khan star as teen-agers—an American lad searches for his father and an Indian lad who owns an elephant named "Maya." If this rings bells, the series is based initially on the MGM movie of the same title. Photography is said to be of exceptional beauty scenicwise. 7:30-8:30 p. m.

Movies

Tuesday and Saturday evenings, 9-11 p. m., are reserved in the programming schedule for NBC's prestige movie programming. Of the series returning (17 in the entire NBC schedule), five have new time slots, as follows:

"The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," MONDAYS, 8-9 p. m. "I Spy," MONDAYS, 10-11 p. m. "Jeanie," TUESDAYS, 7:30-8 p. m. "Run for Your Life," WEDNESDAYS, 10-11 p. m. "Star Trek," FRIDAYS, 8:30-9:30 p. m. "The Bell Telephone Hour" on FRIDAY evenings, alternately with the net's news specials, 10-11 p. m.

It Paid Off

For the past two years, Barbara Eden of I Dream of Jeannie, has been disappearing from the sound stage at lunch break. She was never available for interviews or business lunches, but she never explained why. Now the secret is out. She has been studying voice every day, and went without lunch for two years to get the point she wanted vocally. It has worked. She'll be seen in Kismet on ABC-TV, she'll be on a segment of The Kraft Music Hall with Lorne Greene, she has a record album out, and she is presently touring in summer stock in "Finian's Rainbow."

It Paid Off

For the past two years, Barbara Eden of I Dream of Jeannie, has been disappearing from the sound stage at lunch break. She was never available for interviews or business lunches, but she never explained why. Now the secret is out. She has been studying voice every day, and went without lunch for two years to get the point she wanted vocally. It has worked. She'll be seen in Kismet on ABC-TV, she'll be on a segment of The Kraft Music Hall with Lorne Greene, she has a record album out, and she is presently touring in summer stock in "Finian's Rainbow."

Needs License

Woody Allen, who has occasionally projected that leather-jacketed motorcycle look, has been given a motorcycle by a manufacturer. Woody is very appreciative, but he has never passed the New York driver's test, and needs a license to drive the cycle.

True Gentlemen

When Dionne Warwick taped numbers for Malibu U, she stayed on a rock in the Pacific a bit too long. The tide rolled in. It wasn't deep water, but was deep enough to ruin the expensive evening gown she was wearing. So four gallant gentlemen in the cast went out to the rock and carried her back to the beach.

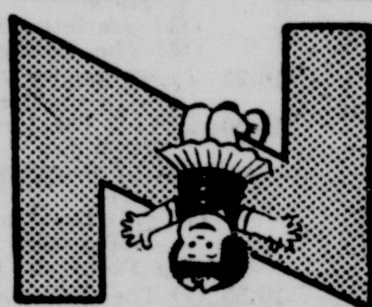

Dialogue Change

More on Custer changes: Dialogue in the pilot is still being rewritten and refilmed as the result of the fuss stirred up by the Indians Sample: Custer now says, "Too much blame is placed on the Indians where the fault is as much our own." It's a line that notorious Indian-hater Custer obviously never spoke in real life.

Either Or . . .

Leonard Nimoy of Star Trek made a personal appearance in a department store. He attracted so many fans he was shoved into an elevator by three cops. The operator looked at him and asked, "What are you, a crook or an actor?"

Carbon Copy

Melodie Johnson, who appears in lots of Universal television shows (she's under contract to the studio), has now relaxed about her name. But when she began acting a few years ago, she was afraid she sounded like a stripper. She was a model who was given a screen test by MGM, but they didn't sign her. Universal didn't test her, but they signed her. "They still can't make up their minds about me," she laments. "They want me to look like everybody — Grace Kelly, Kay Kendall, Carole Lombard. Everybody but me."

Content to Do 'Bits'

With F Troop off TV, Forrest Tucker, Larry Storch and Ken Berry are making night club appearances. And old western star Bob Steele, who played Trooper Duffy, is back on the golf course, where he shoots in the 70s.

He says he is not worried that the series is off. "I've always managed to work. I never went for all this hoop-de-do about being an actor and demanding high salaries. When a lot of 'em were starving, I was content to do bit parts just to be active, to add a little something. Why disintegrate because of pride?"

PERCENTAGE — When they take shows off the air each year, are there a certain number that must go off?—Susan Botz, St. Cloud, Minn.

There are a certain number that must go off but not because of a formal rule. The unwritten law of television is that for any show to stay on the air, it must glean at least a 33 per cent share of audience. Since there are a certain number that gain that status, it logically stands that the others somewhere in the one third of all shows area, must be discontinued.

Content to Do 'Bits'

With F Troop off TV, Forrest Tucker, Larry Storch and Ken Berry are making night club appearances. And old western star Bob Steele, who played Trooper Duffy, is back on the golf course, where he shoots in the 70s.

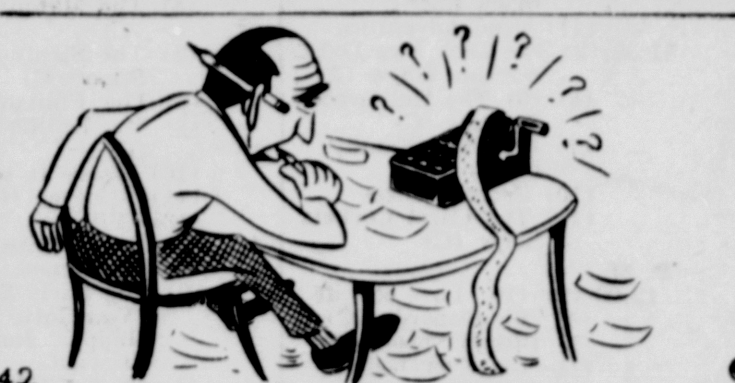

He says he is not worried that the series is off. "I've always managed to work. I never went for all this hoop-de-do about being an actor and demanding high salaries. When a lot of 'em were starving, I was content to do bit parts just to be active, to add a little something. Why disintegrate because of pride?"

PERCENTAGE — When they take shows off the air each year, are there a certain number that must go off?—Susan Botz, St. Cloud, Minn.

There are a certain number that must go off but not because of a formal rule. The unwritten law of television is that for any show to stay on the air, it must glean at least a 33 per cent share of audience. Since there are a certain number that gain that status, it logically stands that the others somewhere in the one third of all shows area, must be discontinued.

The Laire of Talent

By FRANK LANGLEY

NEW YORK—Judson Laire makes more sense when he talks about acting than 90 per cent of his more studied and publicized colleagues.

Laire has played a multitude of roles from the Vice President of the United States ("Advise and Consent") to Papa in the long-run series I Remember Mama.

"It is good," he said recently, "to have the character become as close to your real self as possible. I believe that the actor can give his best performance when he can be himself.

"There are many actors who try to be other than what they are to exploit the role they are playing. Perhaps they get more exposure and notice, but it is not always the best thing for the production."

Laire is currently preparing himself for a starring role in a new daytime drama on CBS-TV, Love Is A Many Splendored Thing, a continuation of the book and motion picture which débuts on Sept. 18.

Among actors Laire has another distinction of being one of the most unassuming, quickly dignified and totally honest men in the business.

When he was asked to give a good description of the new character, he thought for a moment then replied that he didn't think he could at this time. And we would have been disappointed if he had said otherwise.

"I play a doctor," he said, "a pathologist and the father of a young police lieutenant who is a widower. That's about all I can tell you."

"You see, a character like this takes time to develop. First I must read the scripts to get an initial impression."

"Then I will have several conferences with the author and director to blend my impression with theirs."

"After that we try several dry runs with other members of the cast to see how the characters fit together."

"Out of all this begins to emerge the actual figure I will be playing. But even then I will not have the total man."

"As the series progresses I will find from the story and from the other characters, different facets of the man's mind and personality that can be added to him."

"When I am at the stage of being able to add these dimensions I know that I have gotten the essential character for I couldn't add to him until I've gotten him."

"Also at this time I know I have the character as close to myself as possible which is indicated by the desire to add to him until I've gotten him."

"Also at this time I know I have the character as close to myself as possible which is indicated by the desire to add new facets or dimensions to him, as I do for myself."

Laire said too that he is looking forward to the new series despite the rigors of the schedule.

"I have been relaxing as a semi-country gentleman this summer, fixing up my garden and working over old furniture."

"When we start work it will be 7:30 in the morning to 6 in the evening and that's five days a week. I suppose a 60-year-old man shouldn't be looking forward to those hours, but if you're an actor you eat it up."

WILLIAM REYNOLDS

Just Can't Retire

After Walter Brennan did The Real McCoys for six seasons, he said he was tired and wanted out of the series. The network pleaded with him to continue one more year. He finally said he would, but for $10,000 per episode, a figure he thought would discourage them. It didn't and they paid. After that went off the air, he took a brief rest, then returned in The Tycoon. Now he is coming back in ABC-TV's The Guns of Will Sonnett. Why? "I just can't retire," he says. "I gotta do something, even if it is only working two days a week." Brennan is 73!

To Plant 791 Trees

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When William Penn founded Philadelphia in 1632, he vowed it should be a green country town. So the city's Fairmount Park Commission recently launched a program to plant 791 trees along city streets.

Your Friendly FBI Man

By STAN MAAYS

HOLLYWOOD — When Inspector Erskine goes back into the field to investigate crimes Sept. 17 on ABC-TV's The FBI he'll have a new companion, agent Tom Colby, who will also work with his coat open.

"Sure," grins William Reynolds, who's taking over the role, "I'm aware of the inside gag about Efrem Zimbalist's refusing to ever button his coat. But with me it's a case of matching shots."

"You know, between the time cameras stop grinding and start up again, I can't always remember if I left my coat unbuttoned or not. So I'll probably leave it open all the time, too."

Reynolds took the prescribed indoctrination course for his role: a tour of FBI headquarters in Washington, and got the blessing of a handshake from J. Edgar Hoover.

"One thing I noticed about many of the agents I met, particularly the younger ones, is that they wore class rings," he said. "Perhaps the viewers won't be aware of it, but the 6,000 college graduate agents will notice I'm wearing one."

This meticulous attention to detail, this wanting to be thorough in the creation of his role of agent Colby, is quite understandable. Reynolds is one grateful guy, having just come off a three-year "dry spell," during which he had only a few guest shots and one cigarette commercial.

He's cognizant of the "unrewarding role" he's inherited from Stephen Brooks who, it's reported, looked too young for the role. But Reynolds intends to find some new involvement with his portrayal.

"Maybe only because I'm longer in the tooth now," smiles the handsome 35-year-old actor.

"This part in The FBI, and the series itself, is not too far from Jack Webb's thinking," says Reynolds, who worked for Webb many times. "Jack's approach has always been that of the professional cop."

But the end result is far different, we pointed out, certainly in the way the actors in The FBI speak their lines.

"True, but Jack still uses the radio technique," said Reynolds in defense of Webb. "When I did Pete Kelly's Blues—dammit, I liked that show—it wasn't in the way I read my lines. It's the way he cuts the shots; cuts between head close-ups giving it that abbreviated 'just the facts' presentation. His techniques have been borrowed by many. I'm certainly one of his admirers."

It's been tough-sledding for Reynolds, especially for one coming out of that Hollywood mold of photogenic males. His "classmates" included Tony Curtis, Rock Hudson, David Janssen and Hugh O'Brian.

He's been in three series — Pete Kelly's Blues, The Islanders and Gallant Men. "All together they don't lump into..." he trailed off into a smile.

A discerning and mellowed actor now, married with two children, Reynolds muses: "People in my business have a tendency to take their profession too seriously. I finally realized nobody was going to offer me 'Gone With the Wind' roles."

"I figure it's going to take another five years to get that cohesion to put it all together; to make me a useful actor in all parts."

PROJECTED TOPPERS

We have been reading so much about all the new shows coming up this year and have most eagerly been waiting for Danny Thomas, Jerry Lewis and Raymond Burr's new series. What we would like to know is how well regarded these shows are. In other words, we have seen so many series come and go, can we hope for these three to stay awhile?—P. W., Hollywood, Fla.

All three of the personalities you mention have large followings and thus their series must be well regarded. However, television is a very fickle medium, willing to desecrate fans as quickly as create them. And Jerry Lewis will attest to this sad fact. The hit of the season of liable to be with unknown personalities rather than top stars. Such is the nature of the beast.

UNFAIR — I should like to state a public complaint against ABC for the arbitrary and cruel manner in which they are switching Iron Horse. My youngsters have become great fans of that series, and all of them have been able to watch it in its 7:30 p. m. (EDT) time period. Now that it is moving to Saturdays at 9:30 an hour when all of them will be in bed, they are forced to miss their favorite program. I think it is a shame that such thoughtless manipulations are allowed to take place.—L. W., Hartford, Conn.

There are many reasons a network will consider switching a program's time period and all of them usually valid. Unfortunately, like most TV decisions, the audience figures last, if at all, in these considerations.

YES AND NO—Are Richard Basehart and David Hedison of Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, married—R. J. R., Moose Lake, Minn.

Basehart is married. Hedison is a bachelor.

DENA'S DAUGHTER — We have been enjoying Dean Martin's daughter Gail very much on her summer series and were delighted to read that she will be on his show in the fall. However, we weren't sure if the article meant she will be a regular on the show. Do you know?—B. G., Miami, Fla.

Gail will be on with her father, probably several times during the coming season, but not as a regular.

Don't Give It Away

BY FRANK LANGLEY

NEW YORK—Marty Ingels is a very funny young man with a very serious problem. He doesn't know when to stop. "I know I have to slow down," the nervous comedian said as his piercing eyes shot out of his heart-shaped head, begging for attention even more than the cascading words that poured from his mouth.

"Look," he said, pointing to the fork full of salad that had hung in my hand for at least a full minute, while I listened to him.

"I'm not even letting you eat. Forgive me. Eat. Please eat." And he turned away with all the reluctance of the Red Sea when Moses parted it.

Marty Ingels possibly demands more of himself than any other person in the crown colony of Hollywood. If he has found some success, it is because of his unquestionable talent. His failures can only be attributed to trying too hard.

"I keep trying to remember an incident that happened outside the Palace on Broadway long, long ago," he said in his staccato style.

"A bunch of kids were on the street playing jazz for kicks when Sophie Tucker came by. While everyone else praised them for how good they were, Sophie wagged her finger at them and warned them: 'Don't give it away boys.'"

"And that's my big trouble. I give too much away. And I mean that literally."

"When we were making Dickens and Fenster, I made more enemies trying to make friends than if I tried to be a bum."

"In the mornings I used to wheel in coffee and doughnuts for the whole crew. I had everybody's birthday written down and would bring a present any time one came up. And right on the set."

"I kept doing these things until people started getting annoyed, but I had an enthusiasm for them, and kept it up."

"I used to think up crazy gifts for people like the writers and assistant producers that I would send home or take them myself. I finally got the clue when I went into a production meeting with a little special present for everyone there and I got a welcome like 'get lost.'"

MARTY INGELS

"But even then I didn't get the whole message."

Marty did get the "whole" message when he found a new manager who read him the riot act on his "enthusiasms" and took on a king-size job of slowing down the human-dynamo.

"I don't know of anyone who can slow me down," Marty admitted. "When I sit home at night I don't think about what happened today. I think about what I am going to do tomorrow. And most of the time that involves other people. And it's always trying to do more and more with (and for) other people that seems to get me in trouble."

His new manager, Roy Silver, has come up with the solution of slowing Marty down: somewhat at least.

There's a new movie coming up called "The Silent Treatment" based on the era of silent films and Marty wanted to do it.

With the help of his manager, he worked out an appointment with Ralph Andrews the film's producer and sat in the executive's office for a full hour's audition, profusely gesticulating but never uttering a single word.

Marty got the role and will star in the picture, and the next time we meet I hope he will be in rehearsal so I can eat my salad.

Mixup on Singers

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Falls chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America scheduled a festival here Sept. 23 and ordered billboard posters for the show from an Ohio printer.

The posters arrived and were put up at three locations in the city. Then someone discovered that the posters advertised a barbershop quartet show to be held in Pennsylvania.

MIKE CONNORS

Not All Grinds in Burlesque

BY STAN MAAYS

HOLLYWOOD — Joe Mannix, who works for Intertec, a highly-specialized private detective firm, will never get as bushed or sound as tired as Mike Connors was one mid-week night recently.

"I'm tired and liable to fall asleep any minute," confessed Mike, who plays Mannix in the new CBS-TV series premiering Sept. 16. He had just come off the set after a long day's work.

"It's difficult to adjust to the grind again," explains the former star of Tighrope, the series he made six years ago. "It's the exceptionally long hours we put in, and the fact that I'm in practically every scene from first to last. We've completed our eighth show and I haven't had a day off yet."

During the interval between Tighrope and Mannix, Connors had but one Perry Mason guest shot. And then because movie producers were leery about using actors who didn't fare too well in TV, he found it difficult to get work.

At loose ends, he put together an admittedly not-too-good nightclub act to tour South America for a year. This tided him over until a few movie roles started coming his way. Parts in "Good Neighbor Sam" (with Jack Lemmon) and "Harlow" (with Carroll Baker) helped re-establish him in Hollywood again.

"There's a decided difference in TV production today," said Connors. "There's much more of a movie quality to it. You work harder, but you do so because there's better talent involved."

Connors sees a similarity — although slight — between the undercover role in his old Tighrope series and his Mannix part.

"Mannix is somewhat of a loner, too," he says, in making the comparison. "But he's not a superhero. He's always fighting for a cause. The Tighrope character was sort of a fore-runner of the Bond type, you know, always on top of things."

The fact that Mike Connors has outgrown the pretty-boy image perhaps prompted him to add:

"Mannix is much more of a real character, I find, with a different set of values. He has compassion, but he's quick to anger."

Connors expressed hope that Mannix will develop a style of its own, not only through camera angles but through the reactions of its characters.

"I don't mean we're trying tricks for tricks sake," he commented, dispelling use of the new-wave concept. "If we, for example, have a mechanic lying on his back talking to Mannix, we try to show it as a man on his back would see it."

The casting for future shows lists a number of attractive girls, including Marlyn Mason, Karen Black, Judi Meredith and Linda Day. The fact that the series is on at a late hour should attract a more adult audience for some display of sex which, Connors verifies, will occur "if there's an honest involvement or a believable situation."

JAY NOVELLO

Shy Guy Blows His Horn

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Television has done something for Herb Alpert that the domestic sale of 21 million records could not do. Television has made his face as recognizable as his music.

Herb, a handsome, shy man who, according to those who know him well, lives and breathes music, was the most looked-at man in America when his first special was telecast last April.

"Up to that time, I wasn't recognized on the streets. After the show, cabbies were yelling at me in New York," he said.

He was talking in his plush Hollywood office, where seven gold records hang on the wall. "I have eight more over there," he said, pointing to some cartons in the corner. "But I don't know what to do with them."

His next television appearance will be on NBC-TV on Sept. 13 when he is host for the premiere show in the new Kraft Music Hall series. This will be followed on Nov. 24 by a repeat of his highly acclaimed special.

Herb is excited about the Kraft show, "which is completely different from the special and exciting in its own way. We did one number with a full brass orchestra, 25 men. Would you like to hear it?"

He played it on his stereo set, and it was an exciting foot-tapping version of tunes from Carmen with a touch of "Spanish Flea." It will be included in his next A & M album, set for October release.

Louis Armstrong is a guest on the show, and he and Herb take turns playing in each other's style. Jackie Vernon, another guest, tries to play "Spanish Flea" on the trumpet. "I think he hit three notes right," Herb laughed.

The Alpert and the Tijuana Brass phenomenon, which by this time could have begun tapering off, instead is hotter than ever. Despite a rash of imitators ("We have supplied a lot of work for people," he smiles), HA and the TJB are stronger than ever. Does he ever feel the musical ideas are running out?

"Every now and then I have the feeling I'm reaching the end of ideas. But as I start playing the trumpet they come. So long as I keep honest, the ideas will keep coming. I think that's why imitators have a hard time."

When Herb begins playing, he takes off musically. After recording the Carmen spot for the television show, he had to listen to the tape to hear what he had done so that he could lip sync it properly for film.

At one time he thought he would like to make a film. He has now changed his mind. "I have had good legitimate offers from good legitimate people. But television is a panic, with a lot of waiting around. That is augmented 10 times for film. I think I'll stick to specials and recording and traveling."

Herb and the Brass recently set a new attendance record in Sydney, Australia. He is beginning to find that it's hard to get away from the admiring throng.

"One time a man seated next to me in an airplane told me I must be bothered a lot. When I asked him why he said, 'You look just like Herb Alpert.' I told him Alpert was much older than I."

He didn't get out of it so easily when, after being bothered by crowds in Honolulu, he went to Maui for isolation. As he got in a cab at the airport, with radio on, he heard an announcer saying, "Let's all welcome Herb Alpert to Maui." He then told everyone the hotel where Herb was staying.

He's a private man who keeps his private life and family separated from his business. He admits there are disadvantages to fame.

"But I have no complaints. I am happy doing something I know is making others happy. What else is there?"

FILMED IN FLORIDA—In recent weeks much has been said, particularly by Jackie Gleason, about more television shows being made in Miami. Can you tell us what shows are coming here and when?—R. M., Miami, Fla.

At the present time only the Gleason Show and Gentle Ben are being produced in Miami and we have been unable to uncover any other series or producer willing to commit himself. However, the power the "Great One" wields is considerable, as many a brow-beaten CBS executive will attest, and despite the lack of proof positive today, we would say there is some substance to his claims.

DEAN PREEM—Last week we saw a picture of Dean Martin with Orson Welles and James Stewart, taken during the taping of his first show of the new season. It was hysterical and we want to know the date it will be shown so as not to miss it. —N. W., Saginaw, Mich.

Dean premieres his new season on September 14 with Stewart and Welles guesting.

Voters-Actors-Problems

BY STAN MAAYS

HOLLYWOOD — There's a paradox between acting and politics.

Choosing one candidate over another, when both have many shortcomings, is much like trying to pick the best actor from a poor lot for a role. It's a dilemma that often faces voters and producers.

Jay Novello, veteran character actor, doesn't offer any cure-all for these social ailments. But in citing the logical way one society copes with the problem, he implied that—although the political aspects are intriguing—it's a procedure the TV and movie academies should adopt.

"In Wales," Novello was saying, "they have what you'd call an annual community sing. It's the 'Chaining of the Bard' festival, an affair of gigantic proportions because groups from all over the country, starting at community levels, go through eliminations to choose their best singer to attend the festival."

"This goes on for months, you see. Well, after all the preliminaries, and the gathering for festival gaiety, it often happens that they can't decide on a winner. It's then announced there will be no 'Chaining' that year. Naturally, there are groans. But meanwhile, everybody has thoroughly enjoyed all the ceremony."

Novello has one of the great voices to emerge out of Chicago radio during the medium's heyday in the 1930s. He went on to enough movie and TV roles to fill a casting volume.

"I guess it all started when I was very young," says the diminutive actor in his soft, native British voice. "You see, my mother was a singer and my father was an actor. It was the line of least resistance."

Novello's penchant for character dialects, seemingly inherent with him, came to the fore when he first worked on WBBM radio in Chicago.

"I was with a touring stage company in 1936," he recalls. "Our unscrupulous producer ran off with the funds. Luckily, someone told me they were looking for an actor to play an Italian voice teacher in a radio drama starring Mary McCormick."

Novello, of course, got the much-sought-after job (it paid $30), but more importantly, discovered it was relatively easy for him to perform because "I based my characterization on honesty."

A contract with NBC soon followed, and Novello came to Hollywood in 1938. Suspense, Lights Out, Sam Spade, any radio series you can recall, he was in them playing a variety of roles.

In TV, Novello is perhaps best remembered for his portrayal of Willie Sutton, the master criminal, in a three-part Gangbusters.

But despite the many Sutton-like successes that followed, Novello has had disappointments, too.

"I have no quarrel with the machinations of the business," he states plaintively. "Unfortunately, it's all now between the producers and agents. What I regret is the system we work under. Actors I've watched on TV, who have the talent, are now merely smart businessmen."

Novello thinks of acting on TV today in terms of a railway: "An actor is a two-train terminal. He's not fortunate to be a Grand Central Station."

Take Your Choice

Steve Ihnat, who would have been a TV regular had a pilot called Police Story (one of NBC's "sneak previews") sold, is presently in Hawaii making a film called "Kona Coast." Ihnat, who is very fair, got a bad case of sunburn. Costar Richard Boone swears it wouldn't have happened had Steve eaten raw fish. "I'd rather burn to a crisp," Ihnat said.

TV Questions & Answers

THE LAST LAUGH—My friend is laughing at me because I don't remember my favorite actor, Dennis Cole, being in Hawaiian Eye, which was one of my favorite shows. She showed me an article in a magazine to prove it but I know if he had been in that series, I would remember. Is that article accurate?—F. D., Great Falls, Mont.

Yes and no. Dennis Cole was in Hawaiian Eye, but as Troy Donahue's stand-in, not as an actor. Have a hearty last laugh.

WILL THE REAL...—Is it true that Dean Martin is called Dino because his real name is Dino?—W. G., Miami, Fla.

True. Dean's real name is or was Dino Crocetti.

BATGIRL'S BACKGROUND—Was Yvonne Craig who will play Batgirl on Batman a regular on the old series The Eleventh Hour?—Diane Slaughter, Burnsville, Minn.

Yvonne's credits do not include The Eleventh Hour, although she has appeared in several motion pictures and such series as The Big Valley and The Man From U.N.C.L.E.

LOOKALIKE—I recently saw an old movie with Fred Astaire called "Daddy Long Legs" and was impressed how much his dancing partner Leslie Caron looks like Juliet Prowse. Are they sisters, or even related?—D.S., St. Paul, Minn.

You are quite right, there is a strong resemblance, but no relationship.

BULGING EASEHART—It seems to me that Richard Basehart of Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, is putting on a few pounds too many. How much does he weigh?—L. P., Peoria, Ill.

Basehart is quoted at 5 feet 10 inches and 155 pounds by the official biographers at ABC. They also say his eyes are "sky-blue."

MIKE CONNORS

Not All Grinds in Burlesque

BY STAN MAAYS

HOLLYWOOD — Joe Mannix, who works for Intertec, a highly-specialized private detective firm, will never get as bushed or sound as tired as Mike Connors was one mid-week night recently.

"I'm tired and liable to fall asleep any minute," confessed Mike, who plays Mannix in the new CBS-TV series premiering Sept. 16. He had just come off the set after a long day's work.

"It's difficult to adjust to the grind again," explains the former star of Tightrope, the series he made six years ago. "It's the exceptionally long hours we put in, and the fact that I'm in practically every scene from first to last. We've completed our eighth show and I haven't had a day off yet."

During the interval between Tightrope and Mannix, Connors had but one Perry Mason guest shot. And then because movie producers were leery about using actors who didn't fare too well in TV, he found it difficult to get work.

At loose ends, he put together an admittedly not-too-good nightclub act to tour South America for a year. This tided him over until a few movie roles started coming his way. Parts in "Good Neighbor Sam" (with Jack Lemmon) and "Harlow" (with Carroll Baker) helped re-establish him in Hollywood again.

"There's a decided difference in TV production today," said Connors. "There's much more of a movie quality to it. You work harder, but you do so because there's better talent involved."

Connors sees a similarity — although slight — between the undercover role in his old Tightrope series and his Mannix part.

"Mannix is somewhat of a loner, too," he says, in making the comparison. "But he's not a superhero. He's always fighting for a cause. The Tightrope character was sort of a forerunner of the Bond type, you know, always on top of things."

The fact that Mike Connors has outgrown the pretty-boy image perhaps prompted him to add:

"Mannix is much more of a real character, I find, with a different set of values. He has compassion, but he's quick to anger."

Connors expressed hope that Mannix will develop a style of its own, not only through camera angles but through the reactions of its characters.

"I don't mean we're trying tricks for tricks sake," he commented, dispelling use of the new-wave concept. "If we, for example, have a mechanic lying on his back talking to Mannix, we try to show it as a man on his back would see it."

The casting for future shows lists a number of attractive girls, including Marilyn Mason, Karen Black, Judi Meredith and Linda Day. The fact that the series is on at a late hour should attract a more adult audience for some display of sex which, Connors verifies, will occur "if there's an honest involvement or a believable situation."

JAY NOVELLO

Shy Guy Blows His Horn

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Television has done something for Herb Alpert that the domestic sale of 21 million records could not do. Television has made his face as recognizable as his music.

Herb, a handsome, shy man who, according to those who know him well, lives and breathes music, was the most looked-at man in America when his first special was telecast last April.

"Up to that time, I wasn't recognized on the streets. After the show, cabbies were yelling at me in New York," he said.

He was talking in his plush Hollywood office, where seven gold records hang on the wall. "I have eight more over there," he said, pointing to some cartons in the corner. "But I don't know what to do with them."

His next television appearance will be on NBC-TV on Sept. 13 when he is host for the premiere show in the new Kraft Music Hall series. This will be followed on Nov. 24 by a repeat of his highly acclaimed special.

Herb is excited about the Kraft show, "which is completely different from the special and exciting in its own way. We did one number with a full brass orchestra, 25 men. Would you like to hear it?"
